We the
Class of 1934
Dedicate our Index to
Walter Everett Prince
a congenial friend, a thorough scholar
and an inspiring teacher

IN a letter which I wrote some years ago, as a freshman of about three weeks standing at what was then Massachusetts Agricultural College, I find the following sentence, which concludes a rather enthusiastic description of my course of study: "I like my professors, too; especially my English professor." And although time deals roughly with many of our boyish enthusiasms, I have never, through four years as a student and three as a member of the faculty, lost that liking; rather the years have strengthened and deepened the admiration and affection which I then felt for the man to whom this Index is dedicated, Professor Walter E. Prince. Nor is this feeling mine alone; I know that it has been and is shared by many others who have been students here at some time during the course of more than twenty years. It is for them that I speak as well as for myself in trying to express the reasons for our affection and gratitude.

Professor Prince is first of all an individualist. It would perhaps be too strong a statement to say that he was, like William Blake, "born into the church of rebels." I do not know whether the quality was inherited, or whether it gradually developed during his youth, his college years at Brown University, where he received his bachelor's degree in 1904 and his master's in 1905, and his years of teaching at the University of Maine, whence he came to this college in 1912; but certainly no one who knows him can have the slightest doubt that independence of thought and action has ever been one of the guiding principles of his life. This is not, perhaps, a characteristic which is common in college communities. But the present instance shows that on this campus, at least, the students are still unspoiled enough to recognize it and admire it, knowing that a teacher who is true to himself cannot be false to them.

This independence of thought and action has led him always to stand fearlessly for an ideal of education which is becoming more and more rare in our American colleges: that higher education should not have for its aim merely practical or vocational training, but that it should develop the intellectual and moral character of students as well; that it should not seek only to prepare them for success in the commercial world, but should lead them to regard "the eternal verities" — should cultivate in them a tolerance of, a sympathy for, and a loyalty to things in which they can have no personal or selfish interest: the ideals of truth and beauty and goodness by which the best and the wisest men have always lived.

Nor are these aims introduced into his courses at the expense of substantiality. Professor Prince has a passion for thoroughness, as students in his course in freshman composition discover while they struggle to apply the rules of grammar and rhetoric, and he is a genuine scholar, as upperclassmen find when they listen to his lectures upon Chaucer or the Elizabethans. But he tries always to impress upon his freshmen that grammar and rhetoric are only means to an end; and he attempts always to interpret the facts of literary history in the light of the ideals of the men who created it.

Nor, again, do these things of the spirit ever become mere cold abstractions of the classroom, devoid of all human interest. Professor Prince's life has not been one which the world would call pleasant or successful. He has been teaching for nearly thirty years, with no other reward than that which every true teacher finds in his work itself. And it is but a year since the death of Mrs. Prince brought to an end — not, we trust, in defeat — a battle which they two had waged for nearly a quarter of a century for the life and happiness of a talented and gracious woman. But through it all, he has never lost the deep faith in life, the almost boyish zest for experience, especially in the realm of the intellect and the imagination, which is so prominent a trait in the great Elizabethan writers with whose lives and works he is so intimate.

There remains yet unmentioned one element among those that have earned for Professor Prince a measure of affection which it is the privilege of few teachers to receive. Those students who have come to know him best know that his first thought is always, as a teacher's should be, for them and not for himself: that the forthright manner and unequivocating habit of speech before which many a freshman has trembled only veil the warmth and sympathy — almost the tenderness — of a heart which the years can never harden into indifference toward any scene or actor in the drama of human life.

Prologue

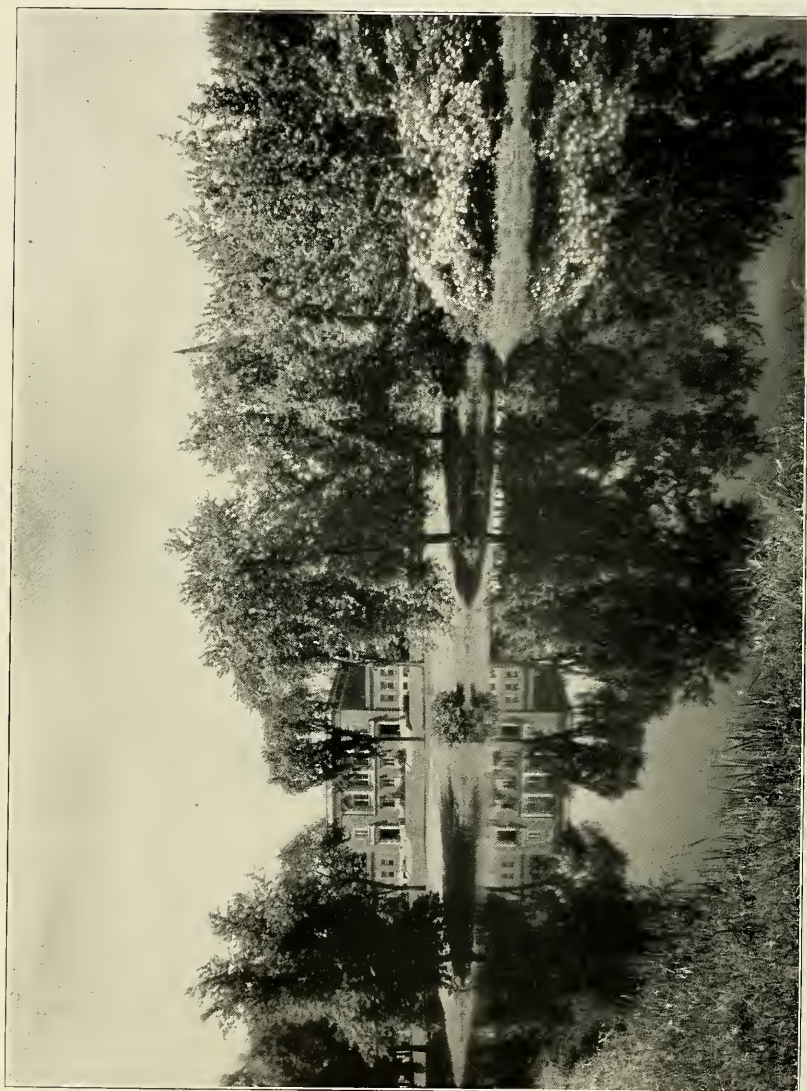

SIXTY-FOUR years ago the first "Index", "a pamphlet designed to represent the internal growth and status of the College," was published to a student body of one hundred and fourteen students. In presenting the 1934 "Index," we are continuing the aim of this sixty-four year old series by giving a brief, pictorial history of the past year at Massachusetts State College.

Although the "Index" is generally referred to as the junior book, and although it is edited by the juniors, it is by no means limited in its scope. An attempt has been made to "represent the internal growth and status of the college" as a whole by giving recognition to those groups and individuals who have worked for the benefit of our Alma Mater during the past year. However, we have endeavored to produce more than a catalogue of events or a series of statistics. Goethe's "Faust" was chosen as a theme subject because of its intrinsic beauty and inspiration. This method of preparing a Year Book is a rather recent, nation-wide trend, and one which we believe to be highly commendable. It not only serves the purpose of the old-style college directory, so to speak, but it interweaves the aesthetic with the prosaic, and converts a file of statistics into a colorful and interesting history of the year. Although based essentially upon a certain time-old, stereotyped form, the 1934 "Index" does present a few innovations. We claim no originality nor uniqueness, but have attempted to change the flavor enough to make it interesting.

In the essay entitled "Goethe and Faust," Mr. Fred C. Ellert of the faculty has artistically drawn the relation between Goethe's immortal drama and our student life. Because of the adequacy of Mr. Ellert's discourse, no explanation of the Faustian theme subject is given in this introductory page.

Farewell to Prexy Thatcher

IT was my pleasure to serve as chairman of the committee which planned the inauguration program for President Roscoe W. Thatcher in 1927. That day ushered in a new era for the college. It brought a sense of security and a spirit of hopefulness. The distinguished delegates, the friends of the college, the faculty, and students all agreed that we had inducted into the presidency a scholar and a strong administrator.

President Thatcher took over his duties in the manner expected of a scientist. He collected the facts and made them serve as a basis for clarifying our objective. Then he formulated a program which would, without harming high standards, develop the college, increase its usefulness, and broaden its scope.

This called for changes and the solution of definite problems. These were faced resolutely and fearlessly. In order to get results he stated the policy, pointed out the change desired, and then expected definite results from members of the administrative force responsible for its realization.

His frankness inspired confidence. The Trustees coöperated, the faculty worked zealously, the State authorities voted needed appropriations, and the public rendered enthusiastic support.

Among the definite accomplishments may be noted the naming of the two-year curriculum Stockbridge School of Agriculture, the reorganization of the course of study, the adoption of a plan for professional improvement, the building of a thoroughly modern Physical Education building, the establishment of a Student Health Service, and the passage of a bill changing the name of the college.

Then came the news that the President's health would not permit him to continue. His resignation could not be denied. He retires to a less strenuous position on our staff with the definite assurance that the Trustees, the faculty, the students, and the many friends of the college gratefully recognized his faithful and telling service. They wish for him many years of fruitful work as a research chemist.

Welcome to Prexy Baker

WE are enthusiastic in extending President Baker a cordial welcome. Because of his wide experience as an administrator, his thorough scholarship, and his tested leadership, we have every reason to believe that he will be successful in directing the affairs of the college. As a faculty we stand ready to support him loyally.

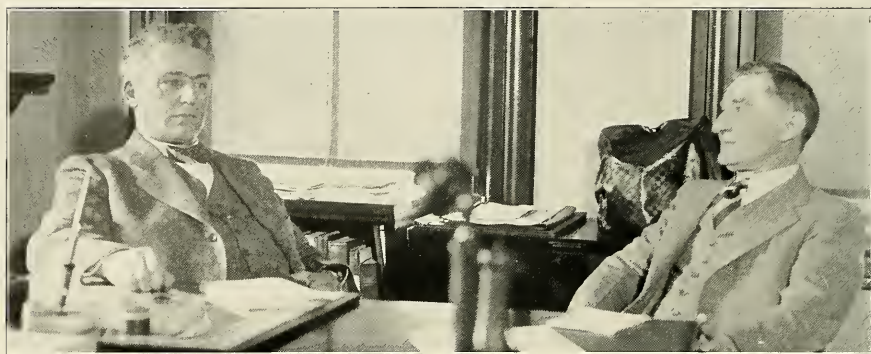

The affairs of the college are on a sound basis, but the steady growth of the student body brings new problems. These President Baker must cope with immediately. They concern housing, new definition of scope, limitation or expansion of women's work, the size and offerings of the graduate school, and reorganization of curriculum to meet new conditions. Such adjustments are common to all institutions of higher learning when they move from the position of the so-called small college into the realm of the larger schools with more diversified programs of study and service. It is our hope that policies will be so formulated that high standards may be maintained in every sphere of the college's activity.

The selection of Hugh Baker is a guarantee that the college will not suffer seriously through the forced change of administration. His enthusiasm, broad outlook, and sane views on higher education at public expense will make him an effective and safe leader.

The college has an outstanding record of achievement which offers a challenge to the very best efforts of our new leader. We confidently believe his administration will shed new glory on his record and bring added fame to the institution, its devoted teachers, alumni, and friends.

It is with unusual pleasure, therefore, that I say in behalf of them — President Baker you are welcome at Massachusetts State College.

Wm. L. Washburn

Administrative Changes

WITH the resignation of President Thatcher in 1932 the Trustees appointed a committee to handle the administrative affairs of the College until the new president should take office. This committee, which functioned until the arrival on campus of President Baker in February, 1933, was headed by Mr. Robert D. Hawley, Secretary to the President, and had for its other members the Dean of the College, William L. Machmer; Director of Short Courses, Roland H. Verbeck; Director of the Graduate School, Fred J. Sievers; Director of Extension Service, Willard A. Munson.

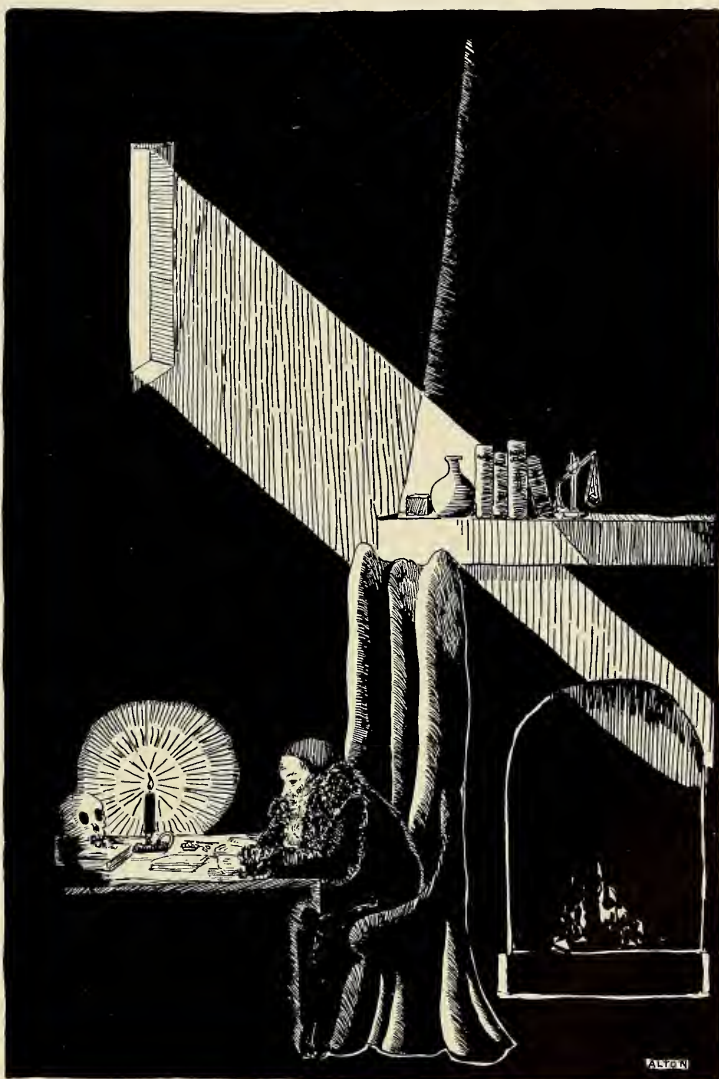

By action of the Board of Trustees, changes have been made in tuition and fees to go into effect September 1, 1933. The tuition fee for citizens of Massachusetts has been increased to one hundred dollars per year, while students from other states must pay two hundred and twenty dollars. Health, laboratory, and matriculation fees will, however, be deducted from that sum. Owing to lack of dormitory facilities, the freshman class entering in the fall of 1933 will again be limited to the number of three hundred, of which not more than seventy-five may be women. Out-of-state students will be limited to five per cent of each class.

During the past year the decree specifying that students in the physical, biological and social science groups shall take credits in the agriculture or horticulture groups has been modified to allow them to take the required eighteen credits in any group other than the one in which they are doing their major work.

The change from the three term year to the semester plan is one of the significant developments of the past year. The faculty acted favorably on the matter, and the new catalogue has been issued with the courses arranged on a semester basis to go into effect in September, 1933.

Goethe and Faust

IT seems to have been the custom of almost every great man of letters, intentionally or not, to pour his genius, in all its freshness and intensity, into one great work, which is then acclaimed by later generations of critics and readers as his masterpiece. Thus, Plato gathered together all the force of his lofty wisdom and set it down in the undying language of the "Republic"; the "Divina Comedia" embraces the highest spiritual insight and visions of Alighieri Dante; "Paradise Lost" reveals to men of deep feeling the sublimest moral testament of the mighty Renaissance poet, John Milton; and Goethe's "Faust" presents to us the moving pageant of human life in all its vividness, breadth and variety.

Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, unquestionably the truest man of genius Germany has ever given to the world, and as Matthew Arnold says, "in the width, depth and richness of his criticism of life, by far our greatest modern man," worked intermittently, yet earnestly, over a period of some sixty years on the production of "Faust." The poem — for it is a poem, at once dramatic and philosophical — was not completed until August, 1831, in the eighty-third year of Goethe's life, seven months before his death, and as the venerable poet sealed the finished manuscript with the symbolic seal of the morning star, he was acutely conscious of having finished, for all who care to read, his spiritual "last will and testament."

Goethe was the poet of life, and his "Faust", accordingly, is the poem of life, of which it possesses all the characteristic elements, as Goethe himself intimates in the "Prelude at the Theater": wisdom, hope and folly; pathos, wit and subtle irony; much error, some truth; mystery and magic; joyous laughter, merry music and the soul-rending song of despair; sense, farce and reason; pure sentiment, passion and love. "Not a chord of the lyre is unstrung, not a fibre of the heart is untouched." And behind it and part of it all may be heard the noble poet, in an inspired voice, singing his heart out, telling of the eternal human struggle — the lofty aspirations, the bitter and vital sufferings, hopes and failures of man upon the earth.

The theme of "Faust", in brief, is that of a man who, upon coming to the realization that all knowledge of the intellect in and for itself is illusory, vain and futile, and, consequently, upon being led to utter despair of ever attaining the high ideal of his life, agrees to sell his soul in return for all experience that life may have to offer. He makes the compact with the devil, Mephistopheles, in which it is written that he, Faust, shall forfeit his soul if ever he can say to the passing moment, "Ah, still delay, thou art so fair!"

Having drawn up a binding contract, written in his own blood with the spirit that denies the reality of all things that are in heaven and on the earth, the spirit that denies the love that makes creation move upward — having done so, Faust travels through the world with Mephistopheles as his guide. He moves from one experience into another, tasting the sweet pleasures of life, as he finds them on the way. But, he is continually disenchanted and disillusioned after every experience; never is he so completely satisfied at any moment that he would bid that moment, "Stay!"

Now the question immediately arises, why is Faust always and ever disenchanted? Why is he always disillusioned? The answer, it seems, is not very far to seek. Faust is an intelligent man in search of Happiness. Like most of us, he is ever seeking the proverbial pot of gold at the end of the rainbow which has no end; and like most of us, he rushes 'round and 'round in a vicious, everlasting circle. Once given the impetus for his dizzy flight, rarely can he stop for breath, seldom can he pause to question himself, to inquire into his actions, to look about himself. Nay, he keeps on accelerating. So swiftly does he move that he neglects to notice the multi-colored beauty of the rainbow, and, failing in this, he naturally fails to catch a glimpse of what is behind, what has formed the magnificent spectacle, which derives its radiant form and beauty from the creative light of the sun, the fount of all true life and being.

Faust has set out in quest of Happiness, but he has forgotten to ask himself, before starting out, the vital question concerning the true nature of happiness. Had he not failed to put the question to himself, he would surely have answered, by virtue of his deep sincerity, as Mary Moody Emerson once did: "Happiness? 'Tis itself." He would have understood, as every good man of intelligence and judgment does, that true happiness is not gained by groping blindly and indiscriminately for objects and sensations outside of one, but by reaching wisely within, for there the true quality is to be found.

As it is with Faust, so it is to a great extent with us. We are forever pursuing a will-o'-the-wisp in one form or another. Some of us have reached the point where we expect to be disenchanted, and, true to our expectations, disenchantment comes; most of us, however, never give the matter a single thought. We live in and for the present, and know not if, or when, we are disillusioned. As students, we select our courses and our major studies either indiscriminately or indifferently. In either case nothing is gained because no serious effort is applied. We waste four priceless years, knocking about in collegiate camouflage, cherishing the vain hope — unless even hoping becomes a hardship — that upon some day in the future some good genius may empty a magic horn of plenty into our laps, or that some crisis or other may gently, very gently, stir us into right action and set us upon the right pathway, along which there are no obstacles to our will, and no barriers to our desires, at the end of which lie perfect bliss and happiness.

Into what utter confusion and folly we have allowed ourselves to fall! Into what fatuous and inane stupidity! That we are forever playing the alternate part of the deceived and the deceiver is quite apparent, and, yet, we proudly boast of our intelligence, wisdom and our tastes. We occupy ourselves only with those objects which demand no effort of the will, no application of the intellect and judgment, and, consequently, all that is good and of true value holds no interest for us. A college education has done nothing to stimulate within us an ardent desire for the "best that has been thought and said." Most of our reading still remains light and superficial, empty and inconsequential, crude, coarse and, yes, even sensual; and the same applies to the music we take delight in, the topics we discuss with each other, the language we use and the various amusements and pleasures we seek.

Pray, do let us become wise. Let us endeavor to see ourselves as we really are. Let us earnestly seek the counsel of the best and the noblest minds, the clearest and the wisest thinkers of all ages. Then surely will we understand, as Plato did, that education is to comprehend all of life, and be a preparation for another, higher life; we will know, as Goethe knew, that "he only earns his freedom and existence who daily conquers them anew;" and we will feel and understand, as Christ felt and understood, that the kingdom of Heaven lies within us and not outside ourselves.

Faust, as Goethe has portrayed him, grows old in experience of life. He passes from a world of private, small, selfish interests into one of interests that are of a universal, of a more unselfish nature; and, finally, upon his death the immortal part of him is borne upward by the angels of heaven into the higher atmosphere. He is given salvation because of the intercession of Gretchen, his first and true love, and, above all, because of his own sincere aspiring nature, or, as the angels express it while they bear him aloft, "Who'er aspires unweariedly is not beyond redemption."

As it is with Faust, so let it be to a great extent with us. We, too, must possess the deep sincerity of a Faust, his unwavering courage and indomitable will, his insatiable, infinite desires and his resolute and aspiring nature. But more than this, let our sincerity be tempered with judgment; let our courage be the courage of hope, never of despair; let our will be rightly identified with a higher, nobler will; let our desires be wisely directed, discriminating and, above all, pure and unselfish; and, finally, let our aspirations lead us toward a state of inner peace and harmony, toward the ideal of true perfection; or, as Goethe kept saying it for us throughout the latter part of his life, "Waste not a word on the things that must pass; to become immortal, that is our task."

1933 Class History

THE time has come when we must bid adieu to the college we may call our own. Four years ago, it seemed that graduation was far, far in the future; but now, in retrospect, we find that these four years have slipped by all too quickly. We of the class of 1933 have passed our college years as have many other college classes, in studies, in sports, and in social activities. We have had our worries and our pleasures intermingled. But more than any other class, I believe, we of 1933 have spent our college years in an epoch-making period in the history of our college.

Great changes have occurred since we arrived here, all eager and full of ambition in that fateful September of 1929. In the first place, the name of the college has been changed. We have, moreover, witnessed the erection of a new physical education building of which M. S. C. is justly proud. Practically all of the freshman rules have been abolished. A horticultural show planned on a large scale has been exhibited with success.

In the field of sports, there have also been many changes and innovations. Soccer has become a varsity sport, and winter track has been introduced. The basketball and football teams have been steadily gaining importance in intercollegiate circles. We have lived to see, and to boast of, the leading football scorer of the East!

We shall not be here to see what results the change from the three-term system to the semester system will produce, but the change is coming close enough to our graduation to make us feel personally glad or sorry that we must miss it.

Lastly, but not by any means least in importance, we have, during our senior year, welcomed a new college president to whom the future of M. S. C. is entrusted, and we wish him and our Alma Mater the best of success!

SALLY MURPHY,
Class Historian.

JUNIORS

"Confess, Sirs, I know how to live"

Junior Class Officers

1934 Class History

JUNIORS! The idea was a bit startling at first, and it took us a few days to become accustomed to the new position and responsibility. It seemed so recently that we had been the entering class with all our campus experiences before us. How vividly we remember those initiation trials: Abbey serenades in the early morning hours, hopping nines, the co-ed pigtail parade to the Amherst game! Razoo night victory and rope-pull defeats, an unusually interesting freshman dance, and freshman athletics were all part of a glorious first year which had, as its climax, a real class affair — Freshman Banquet.

Returning as sophomores to Massachusetts State College, we recognized with the change in name a change in the very spirit of the college and did our part to emphasize this new spirit by bringing to athletic and academics activities our enthusiastic support. With the contributions of '34 to varsity sports, a new period of successful seasons was initiated. While holding scholarship first, we did not neglect the social side of sophomore year as our two big dances proved: Maroon Key Ball and Soph-Senior Hop.

And now we are Juniors, with any over confidence of sophomore year changed to a more purposeful attitude as we turn to our major work, and with a keen recognition of the shortening of our college life. Already we have realized that this is the year we shall be taking our most active part in whatever interests we chose as sophomores, and that this is the year, above all others, to appreciate the campus before we come to our last college year.

RUTH CAMPBELL, Class Historian.

From One who Desires to Express his Gratitude and Affection toward those Students of the Class of 1934 of whom it has been his Privilege to be the Teacher and Friend

How often do I wonder as I speak

To you of all these things so far away
From all the common goals you daily seek —
These forms and fancies that a poet's lay
Still brightens through the mists of times antique:
Wing'd thoughts, high hopes, veiled visions, many a ray

Of flaming faith, which men the ages through
Have lived and died for — what they mean to you.

Ah! what have you to do with these old stories.
That have come to birth from the world's ancient pain.

Of souls that have sailed the ocean where no shore is,
And yet have found their searchings not in vain?
For you suffice these May-time gleams and glories.
The golden sunshine and the gentle rain.
This other light to you seems only gloom,
A dark-veiled vision from a deep old tomb.

To youthful eyes the world seems ever young;
Children foresee no fading of the flowers:
And youthful hearts, when Love's low song is sung,
Heed not the passing of the golden hours;
For with glad sights and sounds his lyre is strung.
Sweet odors drift through his enchanted bowers,
And whelm the senses of the dwellers there
So that earth's beauty seems forever fair.

And though this loveliness begin to fade,
Yet other charms will linger to subdue
That inward voice that cries to be obeyed,
That inward vision which alone is true;
We listen to the world and are betrayed,
Believing that the shadows we pursue —
Comfort, contentment, riches, fame, and power —
Are more than phantoms of a fleeting hour.

We ask: "Why should the end of man's desire
Be set beyond the bounds of common life?
What light should lure him from the peaceful fire
That warms his hearth, to seek through endless strife
A goal intangible? What love is higher
Than that of friend and kindred, child and wife?
Men have been made for happiness on earth;
Why else should a good God have given them birth?"

There is no answer now, though deep within
The heart, a hidden fire forever burns:
And never all at peace, although it win
All that the world may give, the spirit yearns.
There is no answer now, for yet no sin
Visibly haunts us, and the eye discerns
No sinister shadows on the future cast
By unseen ghosts of a forgotten past.

Yet one by one our pleasures pass away:

Our glowing dreams are all dissolved to dust:
We tread the same old weary paths each day,
And do but those few duties that we must;
Try not to see, to hide as best we may,
The fatal changes wrought by moth and rust:
Vow daily to make good vows long since broken,
To speak the things we should long since have spoken.

And even more, beyond the farther years,
When Age has laid his hand upon the heart,
Which feels but coldly either joys or fears;
When even the time when friends forever part
No longer calls forth the assuaging tears,
No more burns grief away with bitter smart:
And only aching emptiness remains,
A flame that flickers and a warmth that wanes:

Unless, beyond the doors of this low dwelling,
Outside these cloudy windows mocking sight,
That new world lie, of which the sages, telling,
Have calmed the fears that come at fall of night;
Have kindled in men's hearts a power compelling
A love no less than that of heavenly Light
Whose changeless radiance knows no near or far,
But colors every flower and every star.

So in each dream of never-fading glory,
So in each vision of a world more fair,
So in each echo of an ancient story
Of a quest in which all high hearts yet may share,
We know the Word, although it now be hoary
With centuries, that bids us still to dare
To look — beyond pain, sorrow, and the loss
Of all we love — at last upon the Cross:

Intently turning all our inward being
To contemplation of that living Sign;
In the white light that falls upon it, seeing
The fire that makes the human soul divine;
In the great peace that broods above it, freeing
Ourselves from self, to know the Will benign:
The great Heart beating on that Cross above,
Where Man and God are bound in boundless Love!

I say but what within my heart I feel
Has been made mine to say as best I might.
I know no words of mine have power to heal
The wounds of doubt, or that the little light
Which I may share can ever set the seal
Of perfect faith upon the fading sight
By which so many wander far astray,
Lured by illusion from the heavenly Way.

Yet I must speak, and may you pardon me.
I could not, if I would, withhold this word
To you through love of whom has come to be
A meaning in the voice I long had heard;
Whose answering love first gave me sight to see
The path from which my feet so long had erred:
You gave me faith to find my vision true;
Oh! may my words give that grace back to you!

"DUTCHY"

Laura Elizabeth Adams

Athol

Athol High School

1911. Bacteriology. Y. W. C. A. [1, 2, 3]; Index [3] [Literary Department]; Women's A. A. [1, 2, 3]; K. O. Club [2]; Alpha Lambda Mu.

Cheerful, hard-working, and athletic — that is Laura. Basketball, swimming, baseball, and even mountain-climbing hold no terrors for her. Yet Laura is gifted along other lines. Who can forget the courage and determination with which she made up a whole term's work and passed the finals with flying colors? Laura's room is always quite a refuge for hungry co-eds when the sandwich man fails to appear and it is hours and hours since dinner. If anyone is hungry, depressed, or simply worn out, there is one unfailing prescription — see Laura.

Gordon Ellery Ainsworth

South Deerfield

University of Maine

1909. Forestry. Lambda Chi Alpha.

Gordon somehow bears a strong resemblance to one of "them thar damned Yankees" who, history, says, inhabited this part of the globe in generations past. A pleasant "down-east" drawl, an unmistakable shrewdness, and a rich sly humor have made him a beloved companion to those fortunate souls who have come under the assuaging power of his lavish benevolence. Gordon is extremely conservative, and he yearns for a simple contented life. May Fate not disappoint him.

Herbert Roger Alton

Webster

Bartlett High School

1911. Landscape Architecture. Maroon Key [2]; Junior Varsity Cross Country [2]; Class Track [1]; M.S.C. Chorus [1, 2, 3]; Index [Art Editor] [3]; Inter-Fraternity Council [3]; Theta Chi.

Roger puts the same indomitable good humor into mowing Theta Chi's lawn that he exercises in the bass section of the chorus. Perhaps it is this philosophy of his that accounts for his popularity, and his election to the ranks of the Maroon Key members. He has the soul of an artist, and good taste in manner and dress as a guiding principle. He is equally at home in the class-room and on the dance floor. Yet "Rog" is far from being sedate and conservative. When we recollect his efficiently destructive work against the frosh on Razoo night, we prophesy a future filled with romance, with jungles, with big game, and with motion picture cameras.

Wilmer Dwight Barrett

West Bridgewater

Howard High School

1913. Economics, History, and Sociology.

It is "Bill" who bears the burden of all our chapel absences as well as of all the papers we strew along the spacious corridors of dear old Stockbridge hall, since he is custodian of that magnificent edifice. "Red's" dream of paradise is a Monday morning on which the whole college cuts chapel. He entertains an attitude of aloof tolerance toward college activities in general, and seems content to be referred to as one of the "student body". His Stockbridge Hall room is often filled with friends who delight in hearing his vivid descriptions of his experiences in the course of long walks home in Bridgewater.

Roger Gordon Bates

Cummington

Northampton High School

1912. Chemistry, M.S.C. Chorus [1, 2, 3]; Index [3] [Literary Editor]; Orchestra [2, 3]; Men's Glee Club [2]; Freshman Handbook Committee [1] [Editorial Board]; Kappa Epsilon.

Here is one of the most active men on campus. His inexhaustible vitality drives him onward to the achievement of his high cultural ambitions, no matter how heavy the burden becomes. While he has been here, Roger has admirably maintained the difficult standards of moral and academic endeavor for which he has always striven. As a student, he rates among the best.

One of his cardinal delights is music, and all of us, either by force or volition, have experienced the sweet melodic interludes of Roger's organ recitals.

Frank Arthur Batstone, Jr.

Newton

Newton High School

1911. Landscape Architecture. Class Treasurer [1]; Class Track [1, 2]; Collegian [1, 2, 3]; Orchestra [1, 2, 3]; Band [1, 2]; Landscape Architecture Club [2, 3]; Orpheus Club [1, 2]; Theta Chi.

Frank has the temperament of the true artist. And such a temperament is not without foundation, for he is an artist of the first rank [yes, first violin]. Seriously, however, Frank is the mainstay of the college orchestra, and a capable clerk of the college store. Very few dances are held on campus without the presence of this gay and sophisticated Lothario. His popularity with the fair sex is the envy of no small number of his friends. Though studies and outside activities keep Frank busy, he always has a smile and "Hi" for everyone he meets.

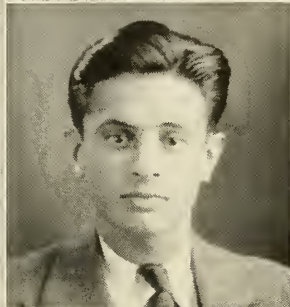

Harry Bernstein

Everett

Everett High School

1912. Distributed Sciences. Class Baseball [1] [Squad]; Class Football [1] [Squad]; Class Soccer [2] [Squad]; Varsity Soccer [2]; Band [1]; Delta Phi Alpha.

Harry is a most affable character. His quiet unassuming manner makes him conspicuous, especially when he is seen amidst his host of unsophisticated rowdies. His handsome features have many a time drawn a twittering sigh of amazement from the adoring maidens hereabouts. As an athlete and a student he is unexcelled — he says.

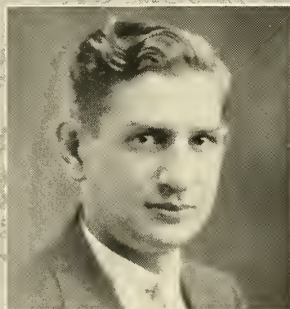

David Louis Birk

Everett

Everett High School

1911. Horticulture Manufactures and Chemistry. Varsity Track Manager [2] [Letter Man]; Freshman Class Track Manager [1]; Class Football [1] [Squad]; Delta Phi Alpha

Who has never been ravished by the winsome smile of this modest young Barrymore? "Dave's" genial nature has made him popular here. He has the reputation of not possessing a "plentiful lack of wit", and indeed, his hoiderish humor has proved to be a constant delight to those who enjoy it. We must add that "Dave" has clung to his naive beliefs in spite of the vituperations of some of the oratorical and persuasive brethren.

George Harrison Bigelow

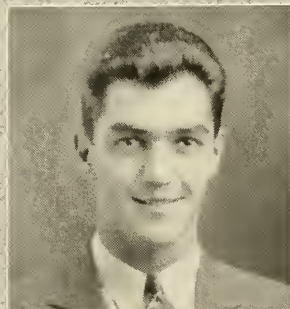

Marlborough

Marlborough High School

1912. Landscape Architecture. Varsity Football [2, 3] [Squad]; Class Football [2]; Class Basketball [2]; Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Need we be at all ceremonious in introducing our "Babe", the most-to-be-admired man in our class? George realizes his importance fully, yet he never tried to humiliate anyone by an intentional exhibition of his superior virtues. His personality is absolutely overpowering. But is he quiet? Someone has actually nominated "Babe" as a candidate for oblivion on account of his extreme taciturnity and modesty. What an absurdity!

George loves noise, and he creates pandemonium wherever he goes. His lively manner, his incessant loquacity and his boisterousness make him a favorite everywhere, even among the viperous vixens.

Leonard Joseph Bingham

North Andover

St. John's Preparatory School

Floriculture. Class Football [1, 2]; Six-Man Rope Pull [2]; Alpha Sigma Phi.

"Duke" is always sober. At least he always seems sober. Whenever someone finishes telling an uproarious unclean story, "Duke" smiles and blushes tremendously for a moment [just for the sake of politeness]. Then his conscience pains him and his former dignity steals back, restoring the calm stern features to his countenance. But "Duke" is a true friend of the first water. Many a pal he has put to bed ungrudgingly. May his altruism be commended!

Ethel Winifred Blatchford

Posse-Nissen School of Physical Education

1910. Education. Asst. Instructor in Physical Education [1, 2, 3].

Both Ethel and the Drill Hall were gained by the co-eds in the same year. Since that time there has been a revolution in co-ed athletics on campus. Ethel, as advisor and instructor, is always on hand to help the girls perfect their technique in all branches of Physical Education. Ethel's name, too, must be mentioned in connection with dancing. Through her arrangement and supervision, entertaining dance ensembles have been presented to campus audiences. As for Ethel's future we hope that she will have obtained as much knowledge at Massachusetts State as she apparently did at Posse-Nissen.

"Bill" is not only a military major, but he is the handsomest man in the army [some say].

True to Kappa Sig's ideals, "Bill" is young and healthy and does just what he pleases. [Behold that defiant glare!] "Bill's" great disappointment came last fall when, after two years of toil and strife and his election to the ranks of the Royal Renegades, he discovered that riding privilege was withheld on nights of dances at the Gables. Since that time, "Bill" has turned pacifist and insists upon singing Farewell to Arms during military class.

"Laddie" is often seen strolling between classes in a most leisurely manner. At such times no one would accuse him of possessing boundless vigor, pep, etc. Nevertheless, it is reported that "Laddie" [don't call him Gerald; even his parents call him "Laddie"] has to resort to the soccer field to expend his excess energy as one of Briggs Booters. The entire R.O.T.C. couldn't force him to attend a dance. He much prefers to spend his time puffing at a formidable-appearing pipe, and wrestling with big names for little plants encountered in hort. courses. Don't be deceived by his serious mien, for he is capable of propounding witticisms at frequent intervals, as well as of appreciating those of others.

"Sam's" reticence is no proof that he has anti-social tendencies. He is said to be greatly abashed in the presence of women, yet there is plentiful evidence showing the dubiousness of this careless assertion. "Sam" is often envied for his aquatic achievements, but he has not yet reached that period of amphibian life where it can be said that he drinks like a fish. This enviable stage of growth in sophistication is left to the other gentlemen of our class. "Sam" heard the famous words of a certain villain who warned us to beware lewd women. "Sam" pays heed to this admonition by avoiding all females.

"Ray" comes from a small town called Woronoco where men are men and taken life seriously. With his advent on campus he showed us that he thought college life should never be linked with anything pertaining to frivolity. With this sort of a philosophy is it any wonder that "Ray" showed sufficient grit and determination to fight and scrap his way to a starting position on the football team? Outside of the time devoted to his beloved sports he is kept busy with his studies, to which he applies himself as conscientiously as to the rest of his activities. It is rumored that "Ray" has some sort of superstition concerning roses, such that he wears one before each football game. We wonder if it may have any connection with his week-end visits to Springfield?

In the science of x and y, Frank has few equals, but as a critic of motion pictures and dance orchestras, he is unexcelled. Although somewhat reserved of manner, he possesses a keen sense of humor and a joke receives his sincere appreciation. His delight is in freak mathematical combinations; his toys are mechanical "gadgets"; and his hobby is personalities, for he rarely forgets even the most casual acquaintance. You would never guess it, but this young scientist is [keep it dark] something of a Don Juan. Of late Frank has been paying 60c. to take in a show, but he maintains they are worth the full price of admission!

When "Louie" first appeared on campus, the boys from Turners Falls prophesied an athletic career for him. His bow-legs and his diminutive size, however, gave us the impression that he would make a better military major than an athlete, but his friends from the Power City proved to be right. He has gained national prominence in football by ranking as the leading scorer of the country, while he also stars in basketball and baseball. At the "hash-house" "Dovie" is a brilliant open field runner, and as a carrier of chipped beef and boiled eggs he has no equal. Above all, he is unassuming and modest, and his geniality makes friends of everyone, even though he be an opposing player.

"Davy" is small, but his diminutiveness is limited to physical stature, for he is a giant in endurance and mental power. His grades are always of the highest, and are the envy of his class-mates. How does he do it? Finding but little incriminating evidence, we finally decide it must be that "Davy" has brains, although he has been known to grind, just a little bit, you know, before a big exam. We accept his cross-country and track records with admiration, and award him the title of Good Sport in all phases of the College Game. Easy-going and self-assured, "Davy" is at times reticent, as if in deep thought on some weighty problem of fourth dimension, perhaps. We wonder if we are not deceived by his role of the woman-hater?

She looked like a Dresden china shepherdess, but no shepherdess ever possessed that executive ability which put Ruth at the head of the "Y," and of every other activity she entered. She was one of those rare and envied people who knew the secret of connecting the angles of a different eternal triangle — studies, academics, and society. Others have managed to accomplish this feat, but Ruth did it without even trying — maintaining that calm serenity of hers in the throes of upset plans, conflicting engagements, and even "finals." Add to this accomplishment her unfailing charm, and there you have the ingredients of Ruth's personality.

Introducing Elinor Cande from Sheffield. Sheffield is another town, like Lee and State Line, which has been put on the map because of its college students. Elinor has done more than her share in boosting the home town. Entirely alert in athletics, social times, and studies; Elinor is a real all-around college girl. We watch with wonder while she alters a dress, plays a speedy game of basketball, or executes some difficult step in dancing, and marvel at the many abilities of this popular person.

Erma is musical, athletic, always agreeable and — Erma is brilliant.

When we returned to school in the fall of '31 we found that the arrival of a transfer from Connecticut College had created quite a stir around campus. Charlotte proves a worthy addition to co-ed ranks, for she is to be seen at all our social functions. Her junior year, however, marks a change in Charlotte's career. She seems more intent upon her work and achieves a truer balance between studies and diversion. And this, after all, is the true measure of accomplishment.

Carolyn came to college in order to become acquainted with the ways and ideas of city people. She was brought up in Shattuckville; population, 100. Consequently, even the town of Amherst seemed large and wonderful to her. Carolyn did desire some knowledge when she entered, so she decided to major in Home Ec. It was not long, however, before the field of Social Science attracted her more than her original major. Meet the little minister. It is rumored that "Don" expects the dignity of his profession to atone for the multitude of "Miss D. Meanors" of his college daze. "Don," better known as Don Juan, is our nipped-in-the-bud poet, and perspires to great heights. Whenever he feels an undignified moment coming upon him he retires in great haste to a sequestered cemetery where he mollifies his passion in contemplating gruesome epitaphs and his probable destiny. "Don" first came into campus prominence by forcing the Grounds Department to oil the hinges on the rear door to the Abbey. "Don" has one sad affliction, chronic obstreperousness. He will always seem perfectly natural to us if he follows the Biblical precept: "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord."

"Greeny" is 1934's undisputed king of the out-of-doors in general and Mount Toby in particular. His genuine love of nature is his most predominant characteristic, and his chief topics of conversation are fishes, birds, and hikes. His straightforward generosity and vivaciousness, along with his thorough knowledge of the surrounding countryside, make "Chlorophyll" a popular companion for a lengthy hike. Studies to "Greeny" are subjective, yet he takes them seriously and attains good grades. We like him best for his frank sincerity and good sportsmanship.

"Tiny" is one of the unmistakably outstanding individuals on campus. His large frame and still larger avoirdupois mark him at a distance, but his more intimate acquaintances remember him always as a voluble talker, a man who loves to display and practice his bent for oratory. "Tiny", however, when he wishes to study, does so wholeheartedly, and resents strongly any intrusion into the sanctity of the scholastic atmosphere he creates for himself. Though not a musician, he is animated by a very real love of good music. Though far from being an adept at languages, he is intensely fascinated by them.

A friendly smile and a battered flivver are "Freddie's" distinguishing characteristics. The flivver becomes frequently the expression of the generosity of its owner, while the smile is always the expression of one of 1934's most popular personalities. Dance committees, Maroon Key, managerships galore; these are but few of "Freddie's" activities. He is perfectly at ease at all times, on dance floor, stage or track. Always self-assured and cheerful, "Freddie" hates to hurt a fellow's feelings, and is always ready to do one a good turn.

From her own interesting experiences and those of her traveled family, "Marg" can spin fascinating yarns about far-off countries from Germany to the South Pole. This narrative ability, combined with "Marg's" personality and good sportsmanship make her welcome wherever she goes.

An attitude of dignity and poise commands respect for "Ed." We find him capable of dropping this cloak of dignity, and revealing his true idealistic and philosophic nature. His wit is exceptionally keen, and he has a memory which thrives remarkably on selections from classic literature. Although he will never admit it, his very presence spells "bullfest", as any Lambda Chi man will testify. "Ray's" worldly experience makes him distinctly superior to the immature intellectual sucklings hereabouts. His travels and his vast experience have taught him more than we know; hence, he has acquired an air of dignity, and a philosophy of resignation animated by an occasional bit of cynicism. "Ray's" modesty and his unfailing industriousness make him popular with everyone, despite the fact that he is a mathematician. If you really want the "mosta of the besta", learn to know "Ray".

It was some time after "Ken" came to college before we came to know him well, for he devoted most of his time to his studies, and enjoyed being alone. Three years have not changed him materially, and still he enjoys privacy, adventure stories, deep snow, and a pair of skis. Dissection and all that goes with zoology labs holds a peculiar fascination for "Ken", yet between dogfishes he finds time to conjure up a genial disposition and a pleasant greeting for everyone.

"Randy" has proved his mettle. Once when he picked up a trumpet, his friends tittered and finally laughed outright. They just knew he couldn't play. Imagine their amazement when they found that they were right!

But "Randy" took lessons from Sears and Roebuck. Steadily he improved. He joined the band. They needed him. He played at all of the five thousand concerts. At last the twentieth lesson was done, and he was a musician. His diploma said so. Now his playing is beautiful, but sad. It brings tears to the eyes of real musicians.

Seriously, "Randy's" perseverance is remarkable. He usually achieves what he essays. Perhaps his spirit of industry explains his ability as a student.

Within a very few years, "Bob" has matured incredibly. Since his freshman year, he has put away his childish things [notably a motorcycle], and he has become a man. Congratulations, "Bob"!

He is one of the campus mystery men. No one knows where he dwells. No one ever sees him, except occasionally within the dreary confines of a lecture-room. In fact, no one knows very much about him. "Cookie" is one of those strange "Flory" majors who know trees and shrubs by their first names — but it isn't her fault!

Her likes? She is particularly fond of celery and apples [especially the kind which can be obtained only after dark], a good walk [in unpopulated districts], the woods of Toby, poetry [not Edgar Guest's], and the number "7".

Her dislikes? "Cookie" is fed up on "teas", Ag. Ec., eosinophilic polymorphonucleated leucocytes, and propoganda relative to the depression, peace, and socialism.

"Cookie" is certainly not above a good pillow fight, but she can contribute a good solid bit to any argument, providing something worthwhile is in order.

As another of our major brainstorms, "Charlie" has almost succeeded in becoming a real Deutscher, a Chemiker, and a Physiker. His abilities are by no means limited to studies, and he is envied for the broad culture he has acquired for himself. He is by nature refined, and perhaps temperamental. Social activity to him is merely a distraction, but then, he loves distractions.

Hail to a man of importance, the proud, skillful manager of our successful new Glee Club. "Dave" is not the fatuous fop that some harsh critics have imagined him to be. He is merely exclusive. His attitude may be explained by the fact that his emotions and ideas are more esthetic than those of his lowly fellow creatures. "Dave" finds profound satisfaction in classical music, which has become the chief joy and delight of his existence.

In the fragrant springtime, we delight in watching "Dave" skipping along the campus walks with a worshipping damsel clinging to his arm and whispering familiar sweet nothings.

It looks easy to see her do it, but no other girl seems to have the same ability. Small, lithe, and speedy; Flory is the exception rather than the rule. The same is true with her in all other sports; but not only in sports does Flory excel. Flory can dance, and as for her studies, well, we know for a fact that she never needs to burn midnight oil.

Who is this impish, young blade whose spontaneous wit has evoked endless roars of laughter from his vast host of admirers? Behold the wicked gleam in his eye! "Tap" is really dangerous. On several occasions he has been known to threaten the very lives of several professors who lacked the intelligence to pronounce his name correctly. She attempted to "take off" from a glistening, icy spot in the road. She flew for a second or two, but — it must have been due to the weight of the books in the car — she soon landed in the ditch. When accused of being a "Smoothie", "Herb" reminds us that he is merely fastidious and exercises good taste in the selection of his wearing apparel. Lambda Chi boasts of a true Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, for "Herb" has been detected in two guises. As most people see him, he is the dapper man-about-town, snappily attired, with a life-saver continually in his mouth. There are those, however, who know him as the aloof and pre-occupied recluse who locks himself in his cloistered cell to peruse periphrastic periodicals [Saturday Evening Post, et al.]. Nevertheless, "Herb" is a true pal to those who know him well, and all concede to him the title of "good fellow."

Since the days of Abbey serenades the other half of the Cutler combine has been designated as Cutler, R. R. We know him chiefly by his rarely broken silence, and thus often misjudge the true "Roly", who is a dreamer of dreams and a doer as well. "Jim" is our jack-of-all-trades and plumber-chemist, specializing in landslides, conflagrations, and explosions, deluxe, while you wait, [if you dare]. Those who know him best say that the life of this scientist contains a sinister dualism. He is best known as the gay fellow with bicycle and brief-case; still, it is reported that with the onset of evening he frequently assumes a new role, one concerned with pale moonlight, beautiful women, and haunting rhythms.

"Cele" is our eternal paradox. To think that anyone with such wavy blonde hair and feminine mannerisms should be a stalwart member of the Woman's Rifle Team! Or that her gay disposition should incline towards looking up the endless rows of statistics required by her major! "Cele" has the disturbing [to those with guilty consciences] faculty of speaking rather plainly, and some of her "fast ones" contain more truth than poetry. The contradictions in "Cele's" nature, however, are interesting, and no one is ever known to be bored in her company.

"Kay" is known to everyone on campus — if not personally, at least by sight. Her lovely eyes and auburn hair take care of that. But the qualities that make "Kay" so well-liked by those who know her intimately lie deeper than mere appearance. She seems to be able to play a number of roles to perfection. As secretary of Phi Zeta "Kay" is indispensable; as a Home Ec. major [believe it or not!] she is capable; and as a friend — well, ask one of them! To complete the list, "Kay", although not a musician, is musically inclined.

"Bill" started at the bottom rung of the ladder toward success and the varsity football managership, and in four steps he is climbing to the top. "Bill" is O.K. but for his pipes, which he has of every shape, variety and odor. He feels unbalanced unless he has a pipe clamped between his teeth, and he has one for every occasion. A voluble talker, "Bill" has an extensive vocabulary of three words, "yes", "no", and "huh", and he achieves some very astonishing effects by uttering these through clamped teeth, singly or in combination. Strange as it seems, he is the pride of his fraternity, socially, in the Abbey way.

If you want anything done, "Jo" will gladly do it. She never balks at a job — except, perhaps, studying "Pat's English." When "Jo" lived at the Abbey, she could be found acting in all sorts of positions. She was official confidante for guilty and homesick souls; she was a professional sympathizer, and before dances she acted as beauty expert and adviser. The girls appreciated "Jo's" services, and reciprocated. Every bug, fly, worm or other crawling creature that was found by the girls would be captured, and taken to "Jo." "Jo", then, showed her one queer trait, which even now remains with her. She would go into ecstasies of joy over her newly acquired treasure, and calling it by its Latin name, would rush for her cyanide bottle.

This young dreadnought has always been a terror to the naive freshman pledges at Delta Phi Alpha. Indeed, "Al's" imperious manner has scared some of our upperclassmen — but not for long. This modern Shylock always has an eye on his own interests, and it is well known that no one who desires to continue his existence will tread on "Al's" toes. "Al's" carefree, insouciant attitude toward life has always made him amusing. His devilry is far famed, and somehow he gets away with it.

Here is a man who seems to be under the impression that this life should be passed in a medium of silence. Accordingly, he follows the Spectator's solemn demeanor of observing, but saying little. Another Home Ec. Major — but with a difference. "Marge" has that extra something which sets her apart from the rank and file of co-eds. Her talents are many and varied — she is a "smooth" dancer, she can cook [perhaps she has learned the prescribed route to a man's heart], and she can make us laugh at her jokes in spite of our scruples. It is "Marge's" personality, however, that links her accomplishments and makes her such a desirable companion. She can adapt herself to our every mood, and can change in the twinkling of an eye from hilarity to sympathy and back again.

Wilho is equally proud of his athletic and scholastic faculties. His pride is justified. Rarely do we find such a remarkable combination of two diversified talents as we behold in this manly youth. Dame Rumor has it that "Bill" is, to a great extent, a sentimental gentleman; yet Bill defensively asserts that his friendships are merely Platonic. The other of the famous Gerrard sisters! And "Bob" is not one to bask in reflected glory — she went right out after some of her own. "Bob" knew a good thing when she saw it — so she stayed out of school, waiting to join the class of '34. Needless to say, she was a welcome addition, both to the class and to the crowd down on Phillips St. Should we be conscience-stricken at depriving Jamaica Plain of a good nurse, when there are patients here in Amherst who need her much more?

"Vin" has that "man of the world" gaze. His very words breathe of experience for he is our romantic adventurer. During the long winter he passes a life of seclusion far off in the wilds of the Pelham mountains. Through the rest of the year, he travels like a Nomad all over Hell's Kitchen in his mysterious gypsy-caravan. "Vin's" romantic nature appeals to a host of our campus wenches. Without any encouragement from him, they just naturally flock to him, overwhelming the poor fellow's modesty. What a plight! 'Tis a pity, "Vin"!

Just ask the Sig Ep boys how he helps them with their studies. His brilliant remarks and valuable bits of advice are being gathered, and they will be published shortly as Gorey's "Helpful Hints." His first big seller was an autobiography entitled "Some Suckers I Have Known." "Red" is very conscientious about everything, except perhaps his studies.

Fanny is a disappointment to those who admire the proverbial temper which accompanies red hair. In fact we believe her disposition to be one of the mildest in existence. Otherwise, how could she slave for hours overtime in those tedious science labs? Those extra hours show results, however, for Fanny certainly does her bit in upholding the class average and the family tradition. This graceful youth is characterized by a superfluity of energy. He craves action and abhors the thought of wasting time. It has been generally rumored about campus that our "Bunker" is the illustrious personage after whom a famous monument was named. "Nat's" haughty mien and prodigious sense of importance have made him a rare personality. Nothing has ever fazed him. His illimitable genius allows him to undertake hundreds, nay — thousands of activities.

"Nat" has strong histrionic inclinations. His unceasing volubility and usual affectation reveal the actor in him. His haughtiness and conceit disclose the autocrat in him. The most astonishing thing about "Polly" is the way she manages to find time for all her activities and duties. While others groan under the burden of study alone, "Polly" smiles at us cheerfully at the end of "caf" line every night, apparently without a care in the world. How, we wonder, does she ever serve on committees, punch meal-tickets, attend "Vic" parties, and major in English without ever looking hurried or disturbed? We have finally decided that it is just one of her gifts, and have stopped worrying.

Though not an exceedingly brilliant scholar, "Hoagie" has that admirable quality of absorbing a day's work in twenty minutes. To say that Harriette is a familiar figure on campus doesn't tell half the story. At any hour of the day she may be seen hurrying from Stockbridge to Goessmann, Goessmann to the Abbey, hither and yon, wherever her duties call her. Harriette is quite a necessary cog in several wheels. What, for instance, would '34 do without its capable secretary? Where else could Council find so valuable a member? In all that he does he is alert and quick, but exhibits control over a temper which might otherwise prove his undoing. "Slim" Summerville has nothing on "Al"; ask those who roomed in North College with him! When "Al" was monitor, quiet hours were rigidly enforced by means of his vociferous admonitions. With the advent of the class of '35, "Al" was promoted to class captain, and in that office he upheld, Gibraltar-like, the cause of '34 against the freshman rabble, but succumbed to the wiles of the fair sex. "Mac's" bicycle is as much a part of him as his curly blond hair, and he is rarely seen walking between classes. One by one her talents appear with just enough regularity to make it interesting. Her riding at horse shows is a continual source of envy to her less gifted school-mates. And then, archery to "Kay" is not a matter of blistered fingers and aching backs, but rather the satisfaction of seeing her arrow speed straight to its mark. Best of all, after you penetrate her reserve, "Kay" shows herself a real friend.

He has decided to become a big forestry man, and expects to perpetuate his name in the annals of North Amherst history by charting the wilds of his neck-of-the-woods. Carleton's countenance reveals a firm character. His interests are of a higher level than those of typical collegiate youths. His activity in student affairs and athletics have made him a man of whom the College will be proud to boast. Statistics show that "Mac" is not even a monogamist, but even as a perennial bachelor, he is tremendously popular. We take off our editorial hat to you, "Mac", for being one of the outstanding worthwhile men in the class

Robert Andrew Magay

Worcester

1910. French. Varsity Track [2]; Class Track [1, 2]; Class Football [2]; Soph-Senior Hop Committee [2]; Theta Chi.

"Bob" has a Ford, Model T, which is seldom seen without a load of students. "Bob" has a manner termed debonaire, or, in the vulgar, "smooth". In short, "Bob" is a "good guy", whose generosity can always be depended upon. He loves neatness and system more than anything else, and is distressed by their absence. He is a popular social figure, and books hold no terrors for him; hence, he is prone to neglect them at times for the more glamorous dance floor. His non-chalant manner and happy outlook on life are "Bob's" most likeable attributes.

Shirley Elizabeth McCarthy

Greenfield

Greenfield High School

1912. Languages. Roister Doisters [1, 2, 3]. [Vice-President 3]; Sigma Beta Chi.

The personification of daintiness. A pocket edition of all we admire. That is Shirley. Of course, she will always be remembered chiefly for the finished acting she gave us [what would the Roister Doisters have done without Shirley?], but we like to remember her in her more informal moments — walking the interminable campus paths with that jaunty, little-girl stride of hers, or collaborating with her kindred spirit on some especially difficult line of German translation. And before we met Shirley, we never realized just how good "things which came in small packages" could be!

Ambrose Thomas McCuckian

T. V.

"Mac" is our versatile Irishman. It matters not whether it be dramatics, oratory, athletics, or Index photographs, Mac is sure to handle it effectively and with a minimum of effort. We know him best for his genial good nature and friendly smile, but we are told by his fraternity brothers that he is capable of giving vent to a virile Irish temper if aroused by injustice of any sort. "Mac" is long and lanky, and puts this propensity to its best advantage on the hockey rink and quarter-mile track. As a distinct tribute to his ability, the interfraternity conference elected him as representative of the State fraternities to the national council. "Mac" is the "early bird", and we are confident of his success.

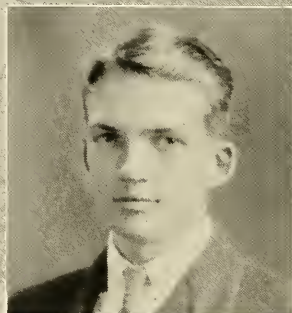

Arthur Carlton Merrill, Jr.

Rockport

Rockport High School

1913. Chemistry. Varsity Cross Country [2]; Varsity Basketball [Asst. Manager] [2, 3]; Class Track [1]; Phi Sigma Kappa.

Known to us here as A. C. Merrill, in order to distinguish him from a well-known forger who uses the same surname, this pleasant chemistry "shark" goes his way silently enveloped in a cloud of relative obscurity. However, an occasional burst of laughter comes forth from this gentleman, and sometimes his unexpected wit produces a titillating effect on the lucky listeners. "Art's" nonchalance adds to his already superabundant requisites for being a perfect gentleman. Is he shy? Yes! Is he retiring? Ah! He is not dead, but sleepeth!

James Willis Merrill

South Hadley Falls

South Hadley High School

1910. Chemistry. Q. T. V.

"Jim's" obliging attitude is one of his paramount social virtues. He is strictly a chem. major, one of those awful abnormal persons who, passing by all the easy courses, undertake a life of severity and endless torture. "Jim's" undying love for languages has led him to great extremes, and he has astounded several professors by his knowledge in these subjects. "Jim's" avocation, as well as his vocation, seems to be chemistry. Such people do not live long. Oh well! Perhaps someday he will investigate the nature and properties of brimstone.

David Charles Mountain

Pittsfield

Pittsfield High School

Bacteriology. Varsity Football [2, 3] [Letter Man, 2, 3,]; Class Football [1, 2]; Class Basketball [3]; Kappa Sigma.

"Dave" just looks this way to prevent undesirable females from bothering him. But look again! What a gentle expression mantles his bending brow; how tenderly he breathes the soft effulgence of his presence on the wondering countenances of women who behold him. Yes, our brawny "Iron Man" is certainly a "social animal", for we have heard that his caveman tactics are frequently quelled by the forceful persuasion of our viragoes.

Hail to the "High Alpha" of the far-famed Campiana Fraternity Under "Dave's" austere tutelage, many a withering freshman has been initiated into the ranks of the genuinely virile.

Aaron Wayne Newton

East Northfield

Northfield High School

1013. Distributed Sciences. Varsity Baseball [2]; Cross Country [3] [Manager]; Alpha Sigma Phi.

"Newt's" shy ways are often deceiving, for he who seems to be a sombre, modest gentleman is in reality a fun-loving, rascally knave. Aaron knows how to be sober at the right time, and this unusual ability allows him to be a student deserving merit for his earnest efforts. His occasional escapades add variety to the ordinary dull life of constant grinding. "Newt" will be remembered for the commendable spirit of cooperation with which he enters fraternity and academic affairs, and also for the remarkable persistence through which he accomplishes so much.

Nathan Paddock Nichols

Montpelier, Vt.

Loomis School

1012. Physics. Class Track [1]; Class Hockey [1]; Outing Club [1, 3]; Kappa Sigma.

Some people like English 28, and others major in physics. "Nick" is our physicist, and, like other good scientists, has a distaste for the abstractness and immaterialism [lack of material] of public speaking courses. Nevertheless, "Nick's" philosophy includes a strong belief that one can get some good out of any course, and he demonstrates that validity of this belief by discovering some humorous incident in nearly every class hour. Kappa Sig's electrical wizard is, however, primarily a man of the out-of-doors, and there are but few spots about Amherst with which he is not acquainted. "Nick" believes there is a way for every will, and is bound for success, whether it be erudition, or the fulfillment of his ambition to climb Mount Toby by motorcycle.

Fred Jouett Nisbet

Boston

Randolph-Macon Academy, Bedford, Va.

1912. Landscape Architecture. Cheer Leader [1]; Varsity Track [1, 2] [Squad]; Class Track [1] [Numerals]; Outing Club [2]; Orchestra [2]; Band [1, 2, 3]; Landscape Club; K. O. Club [1, 2, 3]; Theta Chi.

"I would be a fairy if I could,
-----, and living in the wood."

Whoever accused "Freddy" of cherishing this theme as an ideal, was entirely wrong. On the track, in the pool, on the tennis-court we have beheld "Freddy," the Man. Remember, — once some insolent marauders broke into Fred's North College apartments, with the intent of molesting him. There, in the middle of the floor, stood General Custer Nisbet, a naked sword in his hand. "Stop!" he cried, "the man who touches me will have this sword run through his entrails!" Whereupon, "Freddy" enjoyed a moonlight dip.

"Freddy" is affable and, hence, well-liked about campus. His good-humor has often aggravated those who have tried to humiliate him.

Robert Gillette Noble

Florence

Northampton High School

1912. Education. Maroon Key [Vice Pres.] [2]; Soph-Senior Hop Committee [Chairman]; Band [1, 2, 3].

An excellent musician, "Bob" is a valuable member of the Lord Jeff Serenaders, and has many times contributed to the success of the campus informals. He may be found nearly any afternoon filling Bowker auditorium with melody and syncopation from the grand piano. If in the cafeteria you hear a comic interpretation of some campus character rendered in a well-modulated drawl and accompanied by spontaneous laughter, you need not look to identify this curly-haired individual with the ready humor. "Bob's" worst fault is a poor memory. He knows everyone, but often forgets the correct name, and often neglects to meet important engagements, such as chapels and the like.

Cornelius Francis O'Neil

Northampton

St. Michael's High School

1912. Chemistry. Kappa Epsilon.

This blushing Irish rogue has created a sensation by his handsome appearance and affable disposition. His ready wit can never be restrained, and his practical jokes are permeated with the old Celtic love for mischief. "Cuddy", as he is familiarly called, comes to us daily from obscure realms far west of the grand old Connecticut. Please Lord, may we see more of "Cuddy" and acquire some of his likeable traits.

Walter Louis Papp

North Falmouth

Lawrence High School

1910. Landscape Architecture. M. S. C. Chorus [1, 2]; Men's Glee Club [3]; Choir [1, 2].

"Pappie" is a fellow with a very unobtrusive personality. Those who know him best say that nothing but classes can lure him from his lair in the labyrinthine maze of a Phillips Street domicile. His great love is singing, and for it he is said to sally forth weekly to attend the rehearsals of the campus chorus, since he possesses a big booming bass. His voice, however, under the proper stimulus, is capable of uttering phrases of mild and tender import. "Pappie" is a loyal pal to his friends and congenial to his many acquaintances.

Sarah Augusta Peaslee

Woodville

Worcester Classical High School

1913. Home Economics. Y. W. C. A. [1, 2, 3]; M. S. C. Chorus [2]; Home Economics Club [1, 2, 3]; Alpha Lambda Mu.

If you want to know any news, see Sarah. Sarah knows everything of importance about campus life that is happening and has happened since we came to college. How one small head can retain all these facts is one of the problems that baffles us. But such facts entirely do not occupy the brain of Sarah. As she is the baby of the class, one would imagine her powers to be somewhat limited. But, on the contrary, she not only can act successfully in any position assigned to her, but even now can explain with perfect ease any perplexing point which has ever been brought up in any one of her classes.

Harold Carpenter Potter

Greenfield

Greenfield High School

1911. Animal Husbandry. Varsity Hockey [2, 3] [Squad]; Class Track [1, 2]; Class Hockey [1] [Squad]; Dairy Judging team [3]; Poultry Judging team [2]; Outing Club [1]; K. O. Club [1, 2, 3]; Sigma Phi Epsilon.

His quiet complacency has always been impressive. Never has he been known to indulge in the wicked activities of college life. Harold's naive, verdant manner has remained unchanged amidst the vicissitudes in the lives of his companions. With quiet determination he goes his way; and because he has the rare characteristic of minding his own affairs and not interfering with the concerns of others, he is a model of human perfection and an inspiration to those who have known him.

John Frank Pozzi

North Adams

Drury High School

1910. Chemistry. Varsity Track [2] [Squad]; Varsity Hockey [2 3]; [Squad]; Class Hockey [1]; K. O. Club [1, 2]; Sigma Phi Epsilon.

An ancient Oriental proverb says that whoever speaks much, knows little. We judge from John's behavior that he who speaks little, knows much. John's habitual silence, in conjunction with his frequent sage words, signifies that here is a man of contemplation, one who does not desire to reveal himself and his copious knowledge to the degrading influence of the dregs of humanity.

At all times, however, he is quite ready to break his bond of silence in order to indulge in a recess of amusement or in genuine hell-raising.

Ruth Pushee

North Amherst

Amherst High School

1913. Education. Academic Activities Board [3]; M. S. C. Chorus [1, 2, 3]; Orchestra [1, 2, 3] [Manager] [3]; Choir [2].

Ruth will long remain in our memory as the possessor of the most even disposition of the class. Somehow she can weather storms of hour exams and avalanches of quizzes without even exhibiting the usual circles under the eyes. But this equanimity, severed from books, overflows into good nature and enthusiasm for everything under the sun. Probably her lovely voice and musical ability spring from this source, also. Who else, we wonder, commutes daily and still gets a thrill from going home for vacations?

Harry Pyenson

Otis

Lee High School

1913. Dairy Manufactures. Class Baseball [1]; Delta Phi Alpha.

Harry never shows himself unduly merry or unduly sad. He is always the same, just like New England weather. Quietly he lives among his friends, never causing any trouble and always willing to help everyone out of difficulties. He prefers to observe rather than to act, for he believes that he will learn from other people's follies. Perhaps we know now why he enjoys his fraternity brethren so much.

Ruth Sanderson Redman

Amherst Middlebury College
1911. Education, Roister Doisters [3]; Delta Delta Delta.

Middlebury's scholastic standing must have dropped several points when Ruth transferred her allegiance, for since her arrival we have noticed that several almost inaccessible professors have been forced to tap their all-too-small stock of A's and 92's. Studies alone, however, do not satisfy her versatile temperament. The Roister Doisters and social activities help take up the rest of her time. In the short time that Ruth has been with us, she has formed as large a circle of acquaintances as most of us who have spent three years here.

Burns Robbins

Boston Brewtan Collegiate Institute

1900. Distributed Sciences, M.S.C. Chorus [2]; Roister Doisters [2]; Interfraternity Council [3]; Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Burns is an actor supreme, and a humorist of extraordinary volubility. In the former rôle he seems to prefer nightmares, drunken scenes, and others of similar emotional caliber which he portrays with a finesse worthy of the most seasoned actor. Burns' southern drawl lends to him a touch of quiet dignity, until, perchance, an amusing situation presents itself; then dignity gives way precipitately to uproarious hilarity. Among the elements we find him a chemist of industry; elsewhere, an artist with an artist's appreciation of fine things.

Mark Henry Rogers

West Newbury West Newbury High School

1913. Mathematics and Civil Engineering. Varsity Track [2] [Squad]; Class Baseball [1] [Squad]; Class Football [1, 2] [Squad]; Class Basketball [1]; Liberal Club [2].

He is a very quiet and unassuming chap [well, at least until you come to know him], and is saved from the ignominy of non-recognition merely by the fact that he possesses an obvious and unforgettable stride. [Perhaps the military department would call it advance by bounds]. Although Mark keeps his own counsel for the most part, he is often seen at the library in diligent and productive study. His labor is not in vain, for he never fails in getting good grades. Mark never hesitates to put his best into everything he does.

Laura Elizabeth Rowland

Springfield

Central High School

1912. Entomology. Y. W. C. A. [1, 2]; Women's A. A. [1, 2, 3]; Outing Club [1]; Fernald Club [2, 3].

Rather unobtrusive — even shy — yet Laura is always ready with her characteristic humor and sound advice. Remember her with that butterfly net in pursuit of the unwary Lepidoptera or what have you? Except for those rare instances in the interest of science, Laura firmly believes that rapid locomotion is an invention of the devil. She evidently thinks differently about her studying however, for somehow her recitations are always prepared and her book-reports in on time. In case you should ever forget, "Speed", we warn you that haste makes waste!

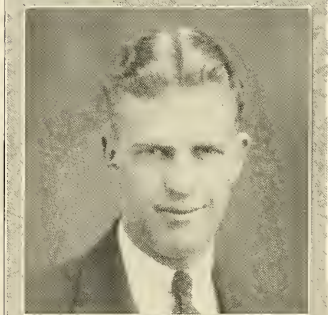

Raymond Edward Royal

Adams

Adams High School

1911. Education. Varsity Soccer [2]; Class Baseball [1]; Class Football [1]; M. S. C. Chorus [2]; Collegian [2, 3].

"Ray" came to college from "way out west in the Berkshires", and with his urban polish impressed us all as being a man of the world. Later we came to think of him in terms of efficiency, scholarly ability, and hearty sincerity. We came to know him and to consider ourselves fortunate that we were numbered among the small group of students on whom he bestowed his friendship. We value his opinions all the more for his cautiousness in expressing them; we admire his competence because of his unassuming manner of handling important matters. Still, "Ray" is only human, if we may judge from his belief that a person should fall in love once every year.

Nancy Elizabeth Russell

Springfield

Central High School

1913. English. Y. W. C. A. [3]; Index [Literary Department] [3]; Phi Zeta.

Nancy, the little Irish lassie with the brown curly hair and brown eyes, was a gift to us from Springfield Junior College. She did not suffer any of the disadvantages of being a transfer, for a place in any group was open to her. Nancy, also, can tell us tales of "the Old Country", for her name is on that very short list of our classmates who have sailed the great blue ocean. Clever, vivacious, pretty, and sociable; it is a simple matter for Nancy to win her way to anyone's heart.

Alban Sherman Ryan

Needham Heights

Needham High School

1912. English. Varsity Football [2]; Class Football [1]; Class Hockey [1]; Class Track [1]; Honor Council [1]; Maroon Key [2]; M. S. C. C. A. [1, 2]; Class Treasurer [1, 2]; Lambda Chi Alpha.

"Al" is good-natured, idealistic, and athletic. That is the reason he is so popular with all his fellow students. He is at heart a philosopher and a scholar, and there is a touch of the ethereal about him in his unaffected appreciation of good literature and music. A true classic, he turns to athletics and social activities in quest of a well-rounded education. "Al" does everything thoroughly or not at all. Whether it be football, pole-vault, or scholarship, he believes that form and the manner of accomplishment is more valuable than the accomplishment itself. "Al's" leadership is a thing based upon admiration of ability coupled with modesty, and his followers are many.

Wolcott Lawrence Schenck

Longmeadow

Springfield Technical High School

1912. Landscape Architecture. Varsity Cross Country [2] [Squad]; Varsity Hockey [3] [Asst. Manager]; Class Cross Country [1] [Numerals]; Roister Doisters [Electrician] [3]; Collegian [Business Asst.] [2, 3]; Soph-Senior Hop Committee [2]; Landscape Club [2, 3]; Lambda Chi Alpha.

One of the junior-senior militarists, "Larry" is often seen wearing the uniform of the order. He is tall, fair-haired, and has a quiet but cheerful disposition, while his attitude of delicate indifference makes him a popular figure with the co-eds. "Larry" is artistically inclined, and spends much of his time making sketches. His tastes are likewise artistic and run to harmonizing tints and color schemes, with always a touch of the conservative. Above all, "Larry" is a real pal and a dependable helper.

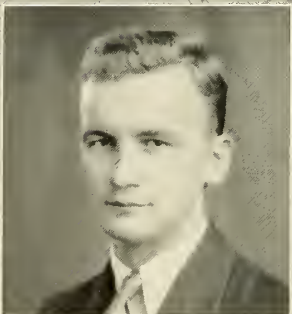

Stanley Francis Seperski

East Pepperell

Pepperell High School

1912. Forestry. Varsity Hockey [2, 3] [Squad]; Varsity Football [3] [Squad]; Class Football [1]; Class Hockey [1] [Numerals]; Class Baseball [1]; Rifle Team [1]; Collegian [2, 3]; Band [1, 2, 3]; Q. T. V.

"Stan's" extensive participation in student affairs proves conclusively his success in social affairs. His invaluable work on the Collegian board has disclosed his originality, as well as an ability in practical literary endeavor. A sense of obligation to his friends, his class, and his college has always dominated him. His favorite sport is the band. Who could ever forget "Stan" with his tiny bass horn? Umph! pah! "Listen to der German Band", Umph! pah! Poor Stan! How foolish were his endeavors to drown out a noisy menagerie!

Albert Sherman

Malden

Stoneham High School

1912. Floriculture. Delta Phi Alpha.

This sober gentleman has never been known to smile. His profound gravity is the only sobering influence among the Delta Phi Alpha coterie. Yet, "Al's" dexterity is not greatly impaired by his seeming inactivity. His fame as a horseman has been broadcast far and wide. Also, he is reputed to be one of the few military majors who does his work in a truly serious fashion. "Al's" reticence has favored his obscurity, for he has given very few persons the opportunity to become intimate with him.

James Albert Sibson

Milford

Milford High School

1910. Economics, History and Sociology. Varsity Baseball [Letter Man] [2]; Varsity Football [Letter Man] [2, 3]; Class Baseball [Letter Man] [1]; Class Football [Letter Man] [1]; Class Basketball [Squad] [2]; Kappa Sigma.

Of course this burly fellow is one of our football heroes. But he has a fonder liking for a dastardly effeminate sport called bridge. "Jim's" skill at this game has gained him much prestige on Fraternity Row. His humorous pranks and endless line of jokes have more than once upset the equilibrium of the dignified Italian Embassy. In private, "Jim" acts like a wild bull; in public, he is almost as moderate as a gentleman.

Howard Ralph Siebers

Amherst

Amherst High School

1912. Distributed Sciences. Senate [3]; Varsity Football [2, 3] [Letter Man] [2, 3]; Class Football [1] [Numerals]; Class Basketball [1] [Numerals]; Inter-Fraternity Council [2, 3]; Kappa Sigma.

Although "Howie" has the distinction of being a "townie", he is to be seen on campus at all times. Taking an active interest in all of college life, "Howie" has been elected to the Senate and has become a valuable football man. He is seen frequently with the family car, and it furnishes an opportunity for expression of the big-hearted generosity which he never fails to show. "Howie's" jovial greeting is always popular with his friends.

Gladys Josephine Simmons

Pittsfield

Pittsfield High School

1913. Distributed Sciences. Chorus [1, 2].

"Simmy" — the good-natured, happy-go-lucky member of the class. We never see her without her grin, and we never speak to her without receiving a clever response. "Simmy" is intelligent, but her studies, just as everything else, are taken as a matter of course. Sometimes she completes them, other times she doesn't; but in the end, they never seem to suffer. Like the rest of us, "Simmy" has her weakness. In this case, it is tea, and she herself has admitted that her source of energy is supplied directly by the cup of tea which she drinks daily.

Alberta Elizabeth Skipton

Springfield

Central High School

1912. Home Economics. Y. W. C. A. [1]; Women's A. A. [1, 2, 3]; Home Economics Club [1, 2, 3] [Vice-Pres.] [Treas.]; Outing Club [1]; Phi Zeta.

It is notorious that all freshmen are young and unsophisticated. "Skippy" was the perfect 1930 freshman, ingénue model, dimples and all. Her accomplishments ranged from taking her courses seriously to wading in the college brook. But when she attained the dignity of a sophomore, she put away such childish things, and her innate tact, poise, and sympathy shone forth. It is, in fact, this sympathy which makes "Skippy" the unfailing friend to frightened freshmen, [and to worried upperclassmen, too!]

Donald Hartwell Smith

South Berlin

Waltham High School

1912. Class Football [1]; Class Baseball [1]; Varsity Football [2]; Honor Council [1, 2]; Class Captain [1].

"Binka" has won the respect of all his classmates by virtue of his modest bearing and unassuming manner. For there are few men on campus of greater accomplishments than he who has to his credit two seasons of stellar football performance, membership on the Honor Council, and first class scholarship. "Binka" is tall, broad-shouldered, and forceful in expression, yet always optimistic and ready to give the other man the benefit of the doubt.

Edith Janette Smith

State Line

Pittsfield High School

1913. Home Economics. Y. W. C. A. [1, 2, 3]; M. S. C. Chorus [2]; Lambda Delta Mu.

Black hair, black eyes, and a pleasing personality describe "Edie". "Edie" is a Home Ec. Major. She loves to dabble with chicken dressing and lemon pie — we love to dabble with her results. But "Edie" does not confine herself wholly to the Home Ec. lab., as she participates in outside activities. Given a problem, "Edie" concentrates her time and effort upon it, until it yields successful results. Notice, for example, how the membership of the Y. W. has increased, and all because of the work of "Edie."

Russell Linnell Snow

Arlington

Arlington High School

1911. Education Varsity Track [2] [2-mile Squad]; Varsity Cross Country [2, 3] [Squad] [Letter Man]; Varsity Hockey [2] [Squad] [Letter Man]; Class Track [1]; Class Hockey [1]; Phi Sigma Kappa.

We do not know whether it was the close friendship with ex-Prexy, the Arlington climate, or his Boy Scout code that made him preach the evils of wine, women, and song to us as humble freshmen in old North College. Since that time, "Russ's" missionary labors have been superseded by more productive occupations, such as hockey and track, with which he has been very successful despite his small size. "Russ" is always in a happy mood and gets a big "kick" out of doing some one a good turn.

Warren Hilbourne Southworth

Lynn

Lynn English High School

1912. Biology. M.S.C.C.A. [2, 3]; Roister Doisters [1, 2, 3] [President, 3].

".....and she can cough delicately, melodiously, and suitably for every occasion, with such a discreet, persuasive crescendo, that you wake gradually without shock."

Thus spake Warren, for he likes nothing better than to quote from the plays in which he has taken part. On the stage he is supreme, and has taken part in every Roister Doister performance since his arrival on campus. He is industrious, tall, always alert, and ready with a witticism for every occasion. Furthermore, Warren possesses a profound appreciation of good books and music, although his major fascination is in the realm of the organism.

Edwin Francis Steffek

Westfield

Westfield High School

1912. Floriculture. Floriculture Club; K. O. Club [1, 2, 3]; Alpha Gamma Rho.

"Mysterious Mose" is among us. His uncanny ways have baffled the best of men. But the virtues of this good man easily outweigh his petty idiosyncrasies. "Ed's" benevolent sympathetic nature alone atones for any of the oddities with which he is charged. His aversion to anything vulgar or even common, his high seriousness, and his distinctive mannerisms have granted him eminence.

Robert Reed Stockbridge

Worcester

North High School

1910. Animal Husbandry. Varsity Football [3]; Dairy Judging Team [3]; Poultry Judging Team [3]; Animal Husbandry Club [1, 2, 3]; Theta Chi.

It is said that "Bob's" midnight cups of coffee are the chief source of income of Ye Olde Dogge Carte. At least, his loyal patronage is the cause of "Dave's" continuing to serve State students, for Bob is a man of position [at the beginning of the "caf" line] and must always appear at his best to return the greeting of each fair co-ed with a shy glance and an increased ruddiness of his robust countenance. Recently "Bob" passed another milestone in his Crusade of Erudition when he summoned up courage to invite a classroom acquaintance to partake of a Sunday evening's repast in his company.

Bob is seriousminded, optimistic and faithful in all he does, with just enough pugnaciousness to make a genial disposition.

Florence Pauline Stoeber

Adams

Adams High School

1913. Education. Outing Club [1]; Phi Zeta.

We once heard that "Stoebie" missed a campus dance, but we were far too well acquainted with her popularity to believe any such rumor. Besides being the best dancer of all the envious co-eds, Florence was the best, [some said the only], tonic for downcast students. And how many downcast students appeared who needed immediate attention! Knowing only the frivolous side of her nature, we were at first quite astonished at Florence's clever comebacks to professors' intricate questions, but we soon realized that we could always depend upon her to be right there when the time came — not only in class, but everywhere.

Russell Sturtevant

Halifax

Bridgewater High School

1912. Animal Husbandry. Maroon Key [2]; Six-Man Rope Pull [2]; Kappa Epsilon.

Earnest and industrious, broad-shouldered and competent, "Russ" is kept busy in earning good grades and his college expenses at the same time. He is serious by nature and dislikes some so-called humor, but a good joke always receives his full appreciation. Above all, he is always ready to give a fellow a "break", and will sacrifice personal pleasures to aid one worse off than himself. Cheerful and optimistic, "Russ" is an admirer of the fair sex, and finds his greatest enjoyment in dancing. It is said that his thoughts are at times "over the hills and far away."

Russell Eugene Taft

Greenfield

Hopkins Academy

"Russ" is nonchalant at all times. His carefree demeanor is not easily disturbed, and his countenance is rarely clouded with the burdens of wearisome existence. Furthermore, "Russ" has that capacity to become interested in anything to which he is subjected; hence, he is not condescending. He is not a grind; no, far from it. But he has a technique all his own when it comes to studies, for he claims that he never neglects them, but only defers action with the expectation of greater achievement in the future. "Russ" is always good-natured and helps others to be so.

Edward James Talbot

Springfield

Central High School

1913. Economics, Varsity Soccer [2, 3] [Squad]; Class Football [1] [Squad]; Class Hockey [1] [Squad]; Class Soccer [1] [Squad]; M. S. C. Chorus [2]; Collegian [1, 2, 3] [Advertising Mgr.]; Index [3] [Circulation Mgr.]; Men's Glee Club [2, 3]; Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Mr. Talbot could easily become a "walking advertisement" for Hart-Shaffner & Marx. Natural neatness, a noble figure, and his handsome smooth-shaven "Barbasol" face have made him an attraction. The hard-boiled "I can take it!" expression on his face reveals his aggressiveness which makes him a success as a salesman, and a terror as a soccer player. "Ed's" sincerity and whole-hearted sympathy are not to be forgotten.

Elizabeth Alton Taylor

Holyoke

Holyoke High School

1913. Landscape Architecture.

"Beth's" papers are welcomed by all tired-eyed, exam-weary professors to whom the handwriting of the landscape major is as an oasis in the desert. "Beth" herself is a boon to us, not because of her penmanship, but because she is such good company. Her adaptability seems unlimited — whether you want to go to the movies, bull-fest, or drop into the Dog Cart for coffee — "Beth" is always ready and willing to accompany you. Her gay, careless manner and cheerful personality are delightfully refreshing, especially in a community where such characters are seldom met.

Mary Isabelle Taylor

Groton

Groton High School

1912. English. Y. W. C. A. [1, 2].

Mary and "Cookie" — you never see one without the other. Mary is the short, slender, dark one of the pair. We have always admired her ambition. Whatever she starts she does enthusiastically, and accomplishes perfectly. Mary has a natural thirst for knowledge along all lines except chemistry. "Ugh, what a smelly, awful place is this lab!" But then, most of us have an aversion to chem. lab.

Mary, also, has a rare sense of humor. Clever sayings are continually popping out while she talks, which are not only original, but also screamingly funny. Mary delights us in every way. May the footsteps of more such co-eds be directed to M.S.C.

Winthrop Snowdon Thomas

South Middleboro

Middleboro High School

1911. Agricultural Economics, Varsity Track [2]; Class Cross Country [1].

"Snowdy" made his campus debut early in his freshman year on the Abbey lawn, when, under upperclass compulsion, he skipped, sang, and "tossed roses". Since that day he has been less prominent, but his well-known bits of humor, delivered in his characteristic piece-by-piece fashion, are as popular as ever. Optimistic by nature, hard luck leaves him undaunted. A fun-loving spirit and a deep appreciation of certain kinds of book-lore are "Snowdy's" most outstanding characteristics, constant friendship his most admired virtue.

Walter Earl Thompson, Jr.

South Hadley Center Holyoke High School
1912. Chemistry. Class Football [2]; Six-Man Rope Pull [2];
Alpha Sigma Phi.

Meet Alpha Sig's High Keeper of the Dish Rag. A quiet longing for the domestic life has at last led this poor fellow to the sink. Hence, Chef Thompson, preparer of fine dishes, is one of the most gentle and sober of our classmates. From his friends, Walter has earned the salubrious title of "Bulldog," undoubtedly on account of the very evident trait of determination expressed by his mien. We admire "Bulldog's" tenacity. He is the personification of what a famous minister meant by his sermon, "How to get what you want." No, we are not exactly flattering "Bulldog."

Grace Elizabeth Tiffany

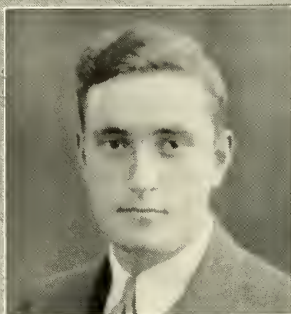

Holyoke Holyoke High School
Bacteriology. Index Secretary [3]; Alpha Lambda Mu

The class of '34 can boast of a registered trained nurse in its midst. Grace realized that she knew far from everything after she had graduated from Holyoke Hospital and had nursed for three years. She entered with us as a freshman. We stood a wee bit in awe of her when first we heard that she had had so much experience in the world. She immediately broke down this barrier by telling us stories about her work. For three years, Grace has been a real friend to us all.

Mary Arundale Tomlinson

West Newton Newton High School
1911. Home Economics. Home Economics Club; M.S.C. Chorus
[1, 2, 3]; Y.W.C.A. [1, 2].

West Newton? We raised our eyebrows when we heard the name wondering if Mary would personify our idea of a true Newtonian. She did! For besides her patrician bearing, the gods [or maybe the goddesses] had given her that rarest of blessings — truly golden hair. But Mary was not merely ornamental; campus activities and recreations helped fill the gaps between study hours. West Newton, to our minds, is noteworthy not only because it produced Mary, but also because of the number and variety of gleaming roadsters and coupés it sent to our campus.

Enthusiastic Henry is paramount as a disciple of non-affectation, for he is continually bubbling over impulsively with comments which are frank to the point of impertinence. Occasionally he will tell you that you need a shave; more frequently he will designate some part of your apparel as being obnoxious by lack of press. Yet, Henry is usually correct in his observations, and possesses business ability best proved by his handling of the affairs of this book. As an ardent admirer of fair butterflies, Henry is right in his element, and his meticulous methods win him good grades. Henry is always genial, sincere and fair-minded, and we like best his ability to retain his good-nature under stress of adverse circumstances.

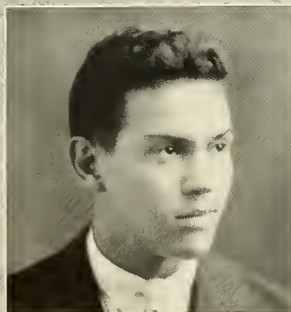

Vernon Kenneth Watson

Amherst

Amherst High School

1012. Chemistry. Class Football [1, 2]; Index [3] [Statistics Department]; Phi Sigma Kappa.

Yes, Vernon is far more than the simple scholar seen tripping twice daily down Pleasant Street. Yea, yea, there is something subtle and surreptitious, something intangible and intriguing about the character of this swarthy son of Amherst. For Vernon is far from being impassive and impenetrable. Just give him an inch of incident for foundation and he will make a mile of merriment and will keep you laughing as well as himself [immoderately, you know, for his je ne sais quoi is really tremendous!]. Seriously, however, Vernon is well-informed, and his ability at repartee makes him an excellent conversationalist. He is punctual at all times, and thorough and conscientious in all he does, as Ye Editor will testify. When there are no dances to attend, Vernon stays at home and strums lonesome melodies on the old banjo.

1012. Distributed Sciences. Orchestra [3]; Band [1, 2, 3]; Bay State Revue [2]; Delta Phi Alpha.

"Benny" is the Alpha and Omega of all human accomplishments. In other words, he is versatile. In music, he is a pseudo-genius — even in vocal harmony. [His Delta Phi Alpha musical friends sued him for breach of promise when he failed to hit a high note in the Bay State Revue].

In his studies, this boy is astoundingly brilliant. And although he is always jesting and crooning in a most ungodly fashion, he is actually very serious-minded, on account of the high goal he has set for himself.

"Teacher, can I go out to play?"

The scene is laid at the Morgan Memorial Camps at South Athol. The teacher—none other than "Betty" herself, "Betty," who, here on campus, is not quite a teacher, but is a real leader. She has accomplished much as president of Lambda Delta Mu, and is a valuable member of the Y.W.C.A. Cabinet. Football, too, fascinates her. As her contribution to the successful team, she gives her loyal support. She attends every home game, and as her latest hobby, she is collecting autographed pictures of a famous football hero.

Nelson Adrian Wheeler

Belchertown

Holyoke High School

1913. Pomology. Class Football [1, 2]; Theta Chi.

Nelson, the Silent and Taciturn. Unpretentious and serene, "Nel" is an unusual personality who evidently enjoys the benefits of an inner contemplative life more than the pleasures of the futile social life of ordinary men. His delight in nature and solitude distinguishes him.

"Nel" is subject to very few of the ordinary college temptations: he does not smoke [much], or drink intoxicating liquors [straight], and he rarely ever favors the ladies with his desirable company.

Joseph Adolphus Whitney

Northampton

Northampton High School

1912. Chemistry Varsity Cross Country [2] [Manager] [Letter Man]; Class Track [1] [Manager]; Lambda Chi Alpha.

"Joe" is one of our militarists and is a proud possessor of personal pulchritude. Dances are his big delight, and he occasionally attends fully attired en soldat as a means of obtaining individual distinction. "Joe" is a chem. major, but otherwise perfectly normal. He is serious by nature, but has his moments of revelry and hilarity. Although he possesses no great love of books, they hold no terrors for him, and he always finds time from his studies to make the most of college friendships. "Joe" is a good soldier and a good friend.

Joan Elizabeth Wilcox

Jamaica Plain

Jamaica Plain High School

1910. Home Economics. Y.W.C.A. [1]; Outing Club [1]; Sigma Beta Chi.

"Joan, do you know what a little shaver is?"

"Of course, it's a chip off the old block."

This is just a sample of the amusing way our Joan has of making little jokes, and she is personified in her sayings. She is somewhat reserved, but to those who are lucky enough to know her personally, she is always interesting, and nowhere could one find a more congenial or loyal friend than Joan.

Francis Woodbury

Malden

Malden High School

1911. Economics, History and Sociology. Y.W.C.A. [1, 2]; Sigma Beta Chi.

"Fran" is a girl of very positive likes and dislikes. Perhaps one of her strongest interests is history. To her it is not a dead subject, for she is ever gaining fresh knowledge of it by keeping up on current events and by reading her favorite historical novels. History may be her major, but she has a most delightful hobby on the side — floriculture. What about those chrysanthemums all the way from the wild and woolly West, "Fran"? And you a Bostonian!

Hillman Hathaway Wordell

Somerset

Somerset High School

1912. Distributed Sciences. M. S. C. Chorus [3]; Band [3]; Alpha Gamma Rho.

"Hilly" is always neat and well-dressed, with a well-defined wave in his hair, and has attracted shy glances of approval from many a winsome lass. Nevertheless, this dapper fellow has proceeded merely to look in another direction and to continue spending his evenings composing missives of a love-lorn heart for that "somebody" somewhere. "Hilly's" impersonations of drunken persons are the delight of his fraternity brothers, while his sincerity and quietness are his most notable characteristics. He is the friend of everyone whom he meets.

Edward Rochford Wyman

Turners Falls

When "Doc" Wyman is at hand, we always feel assured that there is at least one gentleman in our midst. "Doc's" urbane sophistication is somewhat foreign to us here, but we forgive him on account of the sincere sympathy he manifests towards everyone who comes within his bland influence. "Doc's" genuine interest in his work is another reason for his conspicuousness.

Behold the modest gentleman whose study-room door bears this sign: "Tritt herein; Omnes sciārum." Here is the man who, with his room-mate, is threatening to revolutionize science and diverse other things. We admire "Zeke" for his buoyant spirit and his good-natured self-assurance. We smile sympathetically at his abnormal capacity for perpetrating the foulest of puns.

"Zeke" was well known to us when he arrived here. As the third member of the Zielinski family who has roamed about our campus, "Joe" has become part of our "Zeke" tradition.

Dorchester High School for Boys

1910. Dairy Industry. M. S. C. C. A. [1]; Varsity Football [2]; Class Football [1]; Band [1, 2, 3]; Freshman Handbook Committee [1]; Delta Phi Alpha.

Omniscient, omniscient, versatile Joe. If, gentle reader, you require any fact, general or specific, concerning the known universe, or anything therein, make "Joe's" acquaintance. He admits that if there is anything he does not know, it cannot be worth knowing, or it is not true. And when he gets into action, his flail-like gestures, in conjunction with his dazzling logic, would convince the most obstinate of men.

"Joe's" popularity is not restricted to our campus alone, for we have heard that he is greatly envied at certain feminine institutions in the vicinity of Amherst.

1935 Class History

HAVING spent a very enjoyable and successful year at Massachusetts State College as freshmen, the class of '35 returned to "Dear Old Massachusetts" anticipating an even better year as sophomores.

Freshman rules had been abolished, but we made up for this lack by decisively beating the frosh on Razoo Night. The men of '35 dominated the wrestling and boxing bouts, five to two, and on the drill field they gave the class of '36 a very good lesson on the value of strategy and organization by winning the night-shirt scrap, although outnumbered nearly two to one. Neither class won the first rope-pull because the rope "couldn't take it". However, a new rope was secured—but we will let the frosh tell about that. The sophomore-freshman football game ended in a 00 tie, the feature of the game being a thrilling goal-line stand by the sophomores. The class of '35 also dedicated the opening of soccer as a class numeral sport by a victory, 2-1, and were victorious in the inter-class basketball tournament, winning the championship. Besides being active in inter-class activities, '35 has made a name for itself in varsity sports, having letter men on all the teams.

A large number of our classmates have been claimed by academic activities. We were ably represented in all the clubs and organizations on the campus, and we have our share of honor students. The class of '35 has also been very active in the social life of the college, cooperating in the successful renewal of Mountain Day and Dad's Day, and in the Bay State Revue. A good percentage of sophomores can always be found at any Informal or "Vic Party", and our Maroon Key sponsored the Mardi Gras in its real form, a costume ball.

As we continue our college life, our love for the campus and the surrounding hills grows steadily, and we realize more and more the meaning behind "Loyal Sons of Old Massachusetts".

FRESHMEN

"A short time, only, am I here,
And come, devoted and sincere . . ."

Freshmen Class Officers

President	John W. Stewart
Vice-President	Beatrice N. Rafter
Secretary	Margaret L. Hutchinson
Treasurer	Cummings L. Lothrop
Captain	Fred J. Murphy
Sergeant-at-arms	Edward J. Soulliere

1936 Class History

ON September 19, 1932, the formerly unknown and non-existing class of 1936 made its appearance on campus, three hundred odd strong. Immediately, hostilities arose from the quarter of the class of 1935, whose members were those ever bothersome sophomores.

In spite of the fact that the members of '36 outnumbered those of '35, the sophomores won a decisive victory over the freshmen in the first battle of the year, Razoo Night.

However, '36 was not so easily downed. A few weeks later, when the freshmen had become more accustomed to college life and customs, the annual Freshman vs. Sophomore rope pull was held. The first rope, which was tried, broke, and the rope pull was postponed. Two weeks later, with the aid of a brand new rope [the first in several years], the freshmen successfully and uncereemoniously dragged those sophomores through the icy and somewhat muddy waters of the college pond.

The six-man rope pull, held annually between the two competitors, resulted in another victory for '36.

The annual football game between the two classes ended in a scoreless tie, 0-0 [with the freshmen one step ahead].

Only one more contest with the enemy awaits the freshmen. On May 30th will be held a Freshman-Sophomore day, at which time '36 hopes to retaliate for the loss suffered at the hands of '35 on Razoo Night.

The Interfraternity Council

THE fine spirit of coöperation and the good feeling among fraternities which is a notable factor of our campus life is due largely to the work of the Interfraternity Council. The Council is a group composed of two men from each fraternity. This group elects its president and secretary who call the frequent meetings of the Council at which matters of fraternity interests are acted upon.

The Council has as its purpose the promoting of desirable interfraternity relations through forwarding the athletic, social, and academic phases of campus activity in respect to the several houses. In carrying out its purpose this group acts virtually as a medium between the fraternities it represents and the Physical Education department, the Academic Activities board, and the Dean's office with all of which it coöperates. In this respect the Council conducts an interfraternity competition consisting of a varied program which is continued throughout the college year. To promote unification of interests and coöperation on the part of each fraternity, these three departments of the college have given a cup which is awarded annually to the house totalling the greatest number of points throughout the college year in athletics, academics, and scholarship. It is stipulated that the group winning the cup for three years in succession shall have it as a permanent possession.

Universal fraternity grievances find audience in the meetings of the Interfraternity Council, as do many other matters of mutual concern, such as rushing rules, banquet dates, and pledging matters. The Council, because of its having two members from each house, one junior and one senior, elected by and representing the interests of their respective houses, is able to obtain a high degree of coöperation and efficiency in the administration of such matters.

The activities of the Council include an annual banquet in the spring, at which new members from each house are introduced. At these banquets members of the faculty are invited guests. Each year a delegate is sent to the convention of the national Interfraternity Council.

Phi Kappa Phi Assembly

ON April 26, 1933, an assembly was held to honor the eleven newly-elected members of Phi Kappa Phi. This group of eleven, plus the four undergraduates who were chosen during the fall term, makes a total of fifteen elected this year.

The principal speaker at the assembly was Professor Walter Ekblaw. Professor Ekblaw, who is a member of the faculty of Clark University, was anticipated with great enthusiasm by those members of the student body who were fortunate enough to hear him when he addressed the Amherst Science Club last year.

Professor Ekblaw chose as his subject a topic which is of vital interest to every thinking individual at the present time. "Russia Today" is considered and discussed by almost every class of people, but rarely is it discussed with the insight and understanding shown by Professor Ekblaw. In considering Russia, her present situation and her probable future, Professor Ekblaw declared that progress in Russia is almost impossible, owing to its unfortunate northerly location, its lack of rainfall, and its extreme concentration of population. Only about 12 per cent of Russia is arable, and on that 12 per cent live 85 per cent of the country's population. For these reasons the speaker expressed his belief that Russia is today in practically the same position as she was ten thousand years ago, and will remain in that position for thousands of years to come. As a consolation to those who live in constant dread that Russia will rise and will crush and overpower the United States, Professor Ekblaw emphasized his conviction that, owing to adverse circumstances, the rise of Russia to any great height is practically impossible.

SENATE is the student administrative body of Massachusetts State College. Since its members are chosen from the two upper classes, it is able to regard student affairs and interclass relations from the students' viewpoint. The Senate is connected in some way with most student activities: it places a member on the Social Union Committee, the Informal Committee, the Administrative Board, and the Thomas E. Minkstein Memorial Award Committee.

During the past year the Senate has been especially active. It took the radical step of abolishing all freshmen rules, on the grounds that the college had advanced beyond such petty measures. With the cooperation of the Physical Education department, the Senate decided upon a method of choosing and equipping cheer leaders and a song leader.

A new set of Informal Rules was also introduced this year. During the winter, the Senate sent Walter MacLinn to New Orleans to attend the National Student Federation Council, at which problems of colleges throughout the United States were presented and discussed. The Senate's most charitable act of the year was the purchase of a new radio for the infirmary, and many a victim of the winter term epidemic keenly appreciated the gift.

ADELPHIA was conceived as an honorary fraternity to recognize those students who are most active in other organizations on campus. Its membership consists of seven senior men who are elected by their predecessors of the Senior class. Several activities which seem to belong to no other organization have been assumed by Adelphia. One of these is the organization of rallies and bonfires before varsity games. Three such rallies were held during the fall term.

Perhaps the most important function of Adelphia is that of sponsoring Student Forum, at which problems of interest are discussed by the student body. There is usually one held each term.

The Student Forum of the winter term was held on March 8, at which time the following motions were made and passed by the student body: [1] the prohibition of wearing the letter "M" by other than members of the varsity teams; [2] the reestablishing of the compulsory wearing of caps by the freshmen during the first term; [3] the reestablishment of the freshman sing in front of the Adams Dormitory during the first week of college. Reports were received from the treasurer of the Senate and from the treasurer of the Christian Association.

DURING the past year the Honor Council continued in its program of upholding our noble ideals of student integrity and fairness. In a strict way it attempted to make the students appreciate the necessity of maintaining a high standard of honor, especially during this critical period of growth in the size of the student body and the College. The reputation of our College, it averred, was largely dependent on the success of our Honor system.

Again the Honor Council tried to solve the problem of the illegal taking of reserve books from the library. A new system was inaugurated with the hope that the students would cooperate with them in order that the illegitimate borrowing of library books would be discouraged.

WOMEN'S STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION directly governs all the women students on campus. It consists of nine persons, elected by popular majority by the four classes. The body is composed of three seniors, two juniors, two sophomores, one freshman, and one senior from the Stockbridge School. All rules pertaining to the girls, including Freshman rules, are made and enforced by the W.S.G.A., and their administration is under the Executive Council. The body has only been in existence since March, 1919 at which time the co-eds were beginning to get too numerous for the Senate to govern. Then, it was called The Women's Student Council, and the name remained the same until 1930, when it was changed to The Women's Student Government Association.

MAROON KEY is one chapter of a national honorary society which has organizations at many of the leading colleges of the east. The chapter name is determined in each case by the college color.

The purpose of the group is to act as host to visiting athletic teams, high school day guests, and all other such groups of visitors to the college. The duties of the Maroon Key members are three-fold: they are to make the visitors feel at home, to help them in any way possible, and to show them the main points of interest about town and campus.

The social activities of the society are limited to the Maroon Key formal dance which is held each spring, and is one of the high spots of the college social year. Maroon Key members are given the society insignia, the gold key with maroon "M", and in addition, they receive the white felt hat with maroon band and maroon key for recognition.

THE Christian Association has undertaken a program of interesting and varied activities during the past year. According to dues paid, every student in the college is a member of the Association. The active members formed a Cabinet which made the Association an actual and not a theoretical organization. The Cabinet started the year by sponsoring a highly successful Freshman Reception at which a capacity crowd danced in the Drill Hall to the music of a hastily assembled but much appreciated orchestra.

The Association conducted a number of freshman discussions in Draper Hall, and a wide range of interesting topics was covered by outstanding professional men. The Association has also conducted a number of retreats at a camp near Lake Wyola in Shutesbury. Some of the other important activities of the Association have been the sponsoring of guest speakers on various occasions, the Old Clothes Drive, the campus Red Cross Campaign for funds. Furthermore, the Cabinet was constantly making plans for student conferences. The publication of the Freshman Handbook was directed by the Association. This organization plays an important role in student life in our college because it willingly undertakes urgent campus problems with which no other organization wishes to cope.

ACTIVITIES of the Outing Club range from all-day hikes on distant mountains to a fine banquet in June. Also, each year the club sponsors Mountain Day for the entire college. Last year it was very successful, being held on Mount Toby on October 12th, when over 300 students climbed to the summit where they enjoyed a dinner of hot dogs and cider. The meal was followed by a wood-chopping contest and a speech by Dean Burns. It is the desire of the club to have Mountain Days of the future to be real Mountain Days, to be announced by the ringing of the chapel bell.

Many Sunday-afternoon hikes to Mount Toby, Mount Tom, and Norwottuck were especially enjoyed by the members of the club during the past year. The group also does constructive work during the year, by which the whole college is benefited. On Mount Toby the men have cleared over two miles of trail. The Outing Club had one all-day hike to Mount Monadnock. The freedom of Monadnock's vast and bare summit, the broad view of villages, lakes, forests, and distant mountains are pictures long to be remembered.

In June the club had its annual banquet with delegates present from Dartmouth and Amherst colleges. The speaker was Professor Alderman who narrated the experiences he encountered on a trip through the White Mountains.

Horticultural Show

WITH an attendance of over 7000, and exhibits covering approximately 20,000 square feet of space, the Horticultural Show of 1932 was the largest ever held on campus. The student committee in charge of the exhibition was composed of the following: Wilfred H. Bedord '33, William P. Hager '33, Samuel R. Gilmore '33, H. Paul Stephanson '33, Roland R. Cutler '34, Lawrence Southwick '33, Costas L. Caragianis '33, Walter A. MacLinn '33, and Frederick G. Clark '34. Several Stockbridge students were also on the committee. Assisting the above students was an advisory faculty committee, including Clark L. Thayer, floriculture, Chairman; Robert P. Holdsworth, forestry; Lyle L. Blundell, general floriculture; Cecil C. Rice, horticultural manufactures; William H. Armstrong, landscape architecture; Oliver C. Roberts, pomology, and Grant B. Snyder, vegetable gardening.

The central feature of the show, both in situation and attractiveness, was a formal garden of chrysanthemums which was arranged by Samuel R. Gilmore '33 and H. Paul Stephansen '33. The garden was bordered with chrysanthemums and in the center, surrounded by gravel walks, was a sparkling fountain.

The pomology department used as its central exhibit a large "M" composed of red apples against a background of green apples.

In the penthouse garden, one of the exhibits of the department of forestry, was a model of a statue done by Sidney B. Waugh, son of Professor and Mrs. Frank A. Waugh. The exhibit of the forestry department was a forest cruiser's camp and was one of the most effective exhibits. Both exhibits were arranged by students in the department of general horticulture.

The offering of the department of vegetable gardening was a model vegetable farm, constructed to scale. This miniature farm was complete, even to a model roadstand, set up by Costas Caragianis of the class of 1933.

Other departments which exhibited were the horticultural manufactures department which put forth a large display of its products, the department of entomology represented by Dr. Claude Kellogg's educational bee exhibit, and the department of botany, in whose display the work of Dr. Linus H. Jones with non-porous and porous containers for house plants was arranged by Roland R. Cutler '34 and Stephen W. Bennett '34. Other outstanding student exhibits included a woodland scene, a rock garden, a New England hillside, and a desert garden with many plants obtained directly from the desert through the kindness of Professor Arthur K. Harrison. Although many commercial growers sent flowers and elaborate displays for the exhibition, most of the work was done by students, and the success of the horticultural show was due to their efforts.

Departmental Clubs

Animal Husbandry Club

President	Richard Whitcomb '33
Treasurer	John Folan S.-'33

THE Animal Husbandry Club is an organization which has existed on this campus for several years. Its purpose is to stimulate interest among those students who are specializing in animal husbandry, and to present to them material of educational value. The Club is inactive except during the winter term, at which time there is some activity taking place each week. Men from various parts of New England who are leaders in their particular branch of agriculture come and speak to the small group of enthusiastic listeners on various pertinent agricultural topics, many of which prove to be of much practical value.

Fernald Entomological Club

FERNALD ENTOMOLOGICAL CLUB publishes an annual called the Fernald Club Yearbook. This yearbook contains much material of interest to students of entomology, including an up-to-date list of graduates of this college now doing work in entomology. The following is an excerpt from the 1932 issue of the Fernald Club Yearbook concerning the club itself:

"The Fernald Club was founded at the Massachusetts Agricultural College [now Massachusetts State College], January 14, 1925. It was named in honor of Dr. Henry T. Fernald, at that time head of the Department of Entomology, and internationally known as an entomologist.

"The prime purpose of the Club is to keep the students in touch with the most recent advances in entomology, which is accomplished in three different ways: — by speakers giving reviews of recent literature, by discussion of field problems and experiences among the students, and by talks delivered by prominent entomologists who visit the college. The materials so presented are supplementary to the required courses in entomology. This seminar is one of the required courses of the Graduate School, where its primary purpose is the review of recent literature and the presentation of completed theses.

"Membership in the Club is voluntary for all junior and senior students majoring in entomology, while guests and other students are cordially invited to attend. Meetings are held once a month, with interpolated meetings at various times when it becomes possible to obtain a speaker of note. Under the auspices of the Club, prominent visiting entomologists often give informal talks to our students."

Home Economics Club

President	Margaret Gerrard
Vice President and Treasurer	Alberta Skipton
Social Chairman	Myrtle Gary
Publicity Agent	Marion MacLaughlin
Secretary	Mary Tomlinson

ANY girl who majors in home economics is eligible for membership in the Home Economics Club. The object of the Club is to develop a professional spirit among the members, to bring the students into closer touch with the greater organizations of home economics, to keep in touch with the current topics of the home economics world, and to cultivate closer relationship among the girls in this line of work.

K. O. Club

THE K. O. Club, the "Karry-On Club", is made up of former 4-H Club members who still have some interest in club work. Meetings of the club are held once a month, while activities include the assisting of club leaders in nearby cities and towns, helping out on 4-H Club radio programs, and in county meetings.

Former interest and activity in 4-H Club work determine to a large extent the membership of the organization. The more definite object is carried out by monthly suppers and programs which attract a large number of the members. This object is "to promote interesting Junior Extension work from the leader's standpoint and to keep the 4-H Club spirit alive among college students."

The "Karry-On Club" was organized in 1927 by a group of co-eds. In the fall of 1929 it underwent reorganization and expansion to allow men students to join. Immediately following reorganization the Club had a membership of twenty-five. At the present time its steady growth has resulted in a membership of seventy-five students. The adviser is George L. Farley, state club leader.

The purpose of the Club is expressed in three ways: attempting to keep alive the 4-H spirit, keeping in touch with the club world, and assisting with club work. Supper meetings are held monthly at Draper Hall, and there is usually at this time a faculty speaker or one from outside. Such meetings amply care for the first two aims. The third aim is achieved by coöperation with Club Leader Farley and with the Extension Service. The Club elects officers annually, and each member is assessed a small amount each term which goes to a fund for the establishment of a 4-H Club building on campus in the near future.

Landscape Architecture Club

THE Landscape Architecture Club, under the guidance of President Robert Howes, enjoyed an instructive and interesting season of activity. The Club's members were particularly active in the famous Horticulture Show of last fall. During the year interesting talks were delivered at the meetings of the Club by Professors Waugh and Harrison who explained some of the applications of design and construction. The organization has planned trips to places of interest where the members will investigate the nature and plans of architectural projects such as city parks and flower gardens. In all of its activities, the Club has strived to promote enthusiasm among its members in regard to practical uses of landscape architectural design.

Mathematics Club

MATHEMATICS Club might more appropriately be termed "Mathematics Seminar", for its bi-weekly meetings throughout the winter and early spring are conducted in a manner similar to that employed in various departmental seminars. The usual procedure of the Club meetings consists of the presentation of topics of interest to the group by members who are willing to do so. Two or three talks of about twenty minutes in length constitute the evenings program.

Meetings are held at seven o'clock on Wednesday evenings in the mathematics building. Professor Frank C. Moore of the Mathematics Department is in charge of the meetings and assumes the responsibility of the program arrangement. It is to him that the Club is indebted for its beginning, it being an outgrowth of an informal lecture course in solid analytic geometry which he offered to interested students of a few years past.

The Mathematics Club has elected no officers, and no restrictions are placed upon attendance at meetings, although a knowledge of the calculus is necessary for a complete understanding of the material discussed. Some topics presented during the past year have been a new non-interpolating logarithm table, the classic problems of trisecting an angle and of squaring the circle, the mathematics of phyllotaxy, and various forms of "mathematical recreation." At the last meeting of the Club in the spring of 1933, Professor Moore served refreshments to those present.

Physics Club

THE Physics Club, under the helpful guidance of the Department of Physics, has endeavored to instill in the hearts and minds of a rather select group of upperclassmen and graduate students an appreciation for the mysteries of an intricate subject which is so generally distasteful and unintelligible to the uninitiated. The membership of the Club is restricted to those who have been exposed sufficiently to the advanced courses in the Department. Special papers and experiments are prepared by individual members, and these dissertations are delivered at the bi-monthly meetings of the Club. Interesting reports are delivered on such topics as "Conceptions of the Electron in Organic Chemistry", "Measurements of the Electron", and "Hydrogen Ion Determination by the Use of Photo-electric Cells". Physico-chemical relations are usually discussed since most of the members have an active interest in chemistry as well as physics. Frequently a member reports on his original research, discussing the theory and results. The social activity of the Club is not entirely lacking for after the meetings everyone enjoys an informal buffet lunch served in the elaborate grill-room of the Physics Building. The informality of the Club thus alleviates some of the gravity of the highly didactic subject — Physics.

1932 Agricultural Judging Teams

Dairy Cattle Judging Team

THE dairy cattle judging team, consisting of Richard H. Merritt, William C. Libbey, and Carey H. Howlett, competed in contests at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield and the National Dairy Show at St. Louis.

Mr. Merritt won first place in judging holstein cattle at the Eastern States Exposition.

Mr. Libbey won two silver medals at the National Dairy Show by placing second in judging ayrshire and jersey cattle. The showing of the team was also excellent in this contest, placing first in judging ayrshires, and fifth in the entire contest, 23 teams competing.

Dairy Products Judging Team

AZOR O. Goodwin, Eben D. Holder, and Edward J. Waskiewicz made up this team, which competed at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield and the National Contest at Atlantic City, N. J.

The dairy products judging team placed third among 9 teams at the Eastern States Exposition. Eben D. Holder won third place in this contest, winning a bronze medal. In the National Contest, the team placed fourth, competing against 16 teams.

Mr. Goodwin won second place among 48 contestants, winning the right to a graduate scholarship of $750.00.

Fruit Judging Team

KENNETH F. Hale, Cloyes T. Gleason, and George G. Smith made up the fruit judging team, which placed second in the New England Intercollegiate Judging Contest. Mr. Smith won the distinction of being the high individual in this contest.

The team also competed in the Eastern Intercollegiate Fruit Judging Contest, finishing fifth.

Poultry Judging Team

THE poultry judging team, Randall K. Cole, Harold C. Potter, Ralph F. Sturtevant, judged in the annual Intercollegiate Poultry Judging Contest, held at New Brunswick, N. J. The team placed third, less than a point below the winning team in score.

Mr. Cole was awarded a gold medal, being tied for second place in judging poultry. Mr. Sturtevant won a gold piece in the written examination in the contest, also being tied for second place.

IN keeping with the new spirit of the College, the "Collegian", the official college newspaper, has enjoyed one of the most prosperous periods in the history of its existence. Not only was the past year in the life of the "Collegian" marked by the continuance of its service to the students and alumni, but also several important changes of policy have been instituted and several additions made in the form of the paper which have materially increased its value to the reader.

Perhaps the most prominent and noteworthy improvement in the layout of the issue is the new heading, which consists of a sketch of the library tower and gabled roof, projecting above the surrounding trees in full leaf. Across the sketch is engraved the title of the paper. The heading is balanced on either side by two short bits of news: the one on the left is entitled, "A Current Event in the Collegian", while the one on the right is its counterpart, "Outstanding Event of the Week."

Turning to the second page, we find a new spirit manifest in the writing of editorials. In general, the editor has selected pertinent campus subjects, and has attempted to show their application to outside life. A noteworthy fact in connection with the editorials is that at all times criticism is of a constructive nature.

The feature column, "The Picaroon" of former years, has been replaced by "State Static", a column which is justly receiving its share of appreciation from the students. "On and Off the Row" came into existence in the past year to handle fraternity news and to popularize humorous incidents having their origin among the fraternities. Probably the most important addition to the paper is the "Agora." This column is fittingly headed by a sketch of the statue of Demosthenes, drawn by William Hager '33. The orator, scroll in hand, is represented in the position of receiving the ovation of the multitudes after delivering a speech at the agora, or market place. In this column the editors upheld a policy of presenting elevated and mature opinion on a variety of topics, and to this end the contributions were selected.

The third page has been devoted almost entirely to sports news. Through this means the sports department has been strengthened and unified. Features of the page are a weekly sports calendar, and a column, "Thru the Knot Hole", which is responsible for many odd and interesting bits of sport news concerning our opponents and the contests in which our teams have played.

Other activities of the "Collegian" include the sponsoring of the senior questionnaire and the straw ballot in the recent Presidential election. Fifteen hundred copies of the paper are printed weekly, of which approximately four hundred are mailed to alumni and friends of the college. About one hundred and seventy-five copies are sent to high school libraries throughout the state.

BURNHAM DECLAMATION contest has become one of Massachusetts State College's most respected institutions. The contest dates back to the year 1875 when Mr. T. O. H. P. Burnham of Boston gave to the College the sum of money the income from which provides the two prizes of fifteen dollars and ten dollars. In the latter part of the nineteenth century, declamation was considered extremely important as an element in the curricula of educational institutions. It was in order to arouse interest in declamation at this college that Mr. Burnham established the fund.

A somewhat unusual and interesting feature of the 1932 contest was the fact that both of the prizes were awarded to members of the freshman class. The two lower classes eligible for the contest were nearly equally represented.

FLINT ORATORICAL CONTEST has become a traditional part of the commencement program, taking place in recent years on Friday evening of commencement week-end. The contest was founded in 1881 by the gift of the late Charles L. Flint, former president and trustee of the College. The contest, since its establishment, has been maintained by college appropriation. Dr. Flint served as secretary of the Board of Trustees in 1863, and resigned from that position in 1879 to become president of the College.

The Flint contest differs widely in character from the Burnham Declamation contest, in that participants in the former must present an original selection possessing the qualities of true oratory, while the latter contest is a test of one's delivery of some recognized work of literature.

Junior Prom

THE forty-second annual Junior Prom, sponsored by the class of 1934, was held on April 21 in the Drill Hall. Junior Prom, always a social event of note, was this year especially notable, both because of the unusual character of the decorations, and because of the excellent music provided for the eighty-two attending couples by Leo Hannon and his Bell-Hops of New York.

The decorations, of which Roger Alton and Laurence Schenck were in charge, were most striking. Large panels on sand-colored walls, depicted Egyptian life and art. Among the subjects represented were Egyptians building the pyramids, a woman carrying water, a chariot, the well-known Cleopatra, and Ra, the Egyptian god of the sun. Overhead a vast canopy of sand and blue transformed gaunt rafters into a hot desert sky.

SOPHOMORE-SENIOR HOP, like Commencement, has always an element of sadness in it, something of bitter mixed with the sweet. To those attending, it seems the last page of the well-loved book of the year, while for the seniors it writes finis to the volume of their college days. This touch of sadness which sets Hop aside from the other dances of the year exists only in the minds of the students, however, for nothing is left undone to make it the gayest of occasions.

One of the features which made the Hop of 1932 an occasion to be remembered was the presence of Claude Hopkins and his Band. The fame of Claude Hopkins had preceded his arrival on campus, and the connoisseurs were not at all disappointed in his performance.

Black and white were the colors used in the strikingly different decorations for the long-suffering Drill Hall. The walls were festooned with long contrasting strips arranged in a modernistic manner, and the effect was all that could be desired. "Atmosphere", too, was provided by the thin rays of blue light which played eerily around the hall. The favors, like the decorations, were kept secret until the very last minute, and the slave bracelets with the college seal proved a pleasant surprise to the dancers.

Military Ball

THE Military Ball has always been considered one of the most colorful social events of the year, and this year's edition was no exception. As the climax of the winter social season, the ball was well attended, and over one hundred and twenty-five couples danced beneath the elaborate decorations in the Drill Hall. The committee, consisting of Benton P. Cummings, '33, Charles A. LeClair '33, Gordon A. Houran '33, Cloyes T. Gleason '33, Walter A. MacLinn '33, Charles E. Minarik '33, Benjamin Betts '33, and Page L. Hiland '34 as junior member, took care that no detail was neglected, and succeeded in creating an unusually militant atmosphere.

Taking Fort Ethan Allen, the summer headquarters of the Military Department, as their model, the committee converted the empty expanse of the Drill Hall into a most satisfying gallery of camp scenes. The decorations of military tan and blue featured chalk drawings of camp life done by Benjamin Betts '33. Scenes familiar to every soldier were portrayed on the walls of the hall, varying from the mess line to cavalry formations. Two tents, one serving as a shelter for the chaperones and one for the dungaree-clad attendants who distributed refreshments, were placed in the north-east and north-west corners of the Drill Hall, while high over the heads of the dancers hung a cloudless blue sky. Jackie Jackson and his Cotton Pickers provided the music for the affair. One of the features of the evening was the grand march, which has become an established custom at each Military Ball.

Chaperones for the affair included Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Romeyn, Captain and Mrs. Dwight Hughes, Captain and Mrs. Herbert E. Watkins, all of the Military staff of the college, President and Mrs. Hugh P. Baker, and Dean and Mrs. William L. Machmer.

Mardi Gras

MARDI GRAS, which for several years had been tending to become just another formal dance, was sharply pulled into line by the Maroon Key of 1935, and was returned to its original status of a costume ball. In spite of the gloomy predictions of campus conservatives, the Maroon Key took a deep breath, went on with its preparations, and made a success of the masquerade idea.

As a fitting background for both the beautiful and grotesque costumes which appeared, the Drill Hall was decorated in the very spirit of Mardi Gras. Gay maroon and yellow lined the walls, while innumerable balloons floated above, ready for descent upon the eager dancers. Even the orchestra, Lew Carey's of the Hotel Nonotuck, succumbed to the holiday spirit and appeared in clown outfits. The costumes were varied and some were extremely original. Pirates dancing with Colonial ladies were to be seen there, as well as pierrots with Mexican belles, devils with cigarette girls, and many even more incongruous combinations.

Outstanding in their civilian clothes were the chaperones: Captain and Mrs. Dwight Hughes, and Captain and Mrs. Herbert Watkins. President and Mrs. Hugh Potter Baker also attended for a time, thus giving Mardi Gras the distinction of marking the new president's first social appearance on campus. Upon the chaperones also fell the difficult duty of awarding prizes to the wearers of the best costumes. After seemingly endless deliberation, Captain Hughes announced the chaperone's choice. To Benton Cummings, '33, went the honor of having the best man's costumes, and to Helen Reardon, '36, the best woman's costume. Lois Friedrich, '35, and Edward Talbot, '34, were adjudged the best couple, while a special award was given to Agnes McMahon, '33, and Edward Harvey, '33.

If the discussions of Mardi Gras which afterward echoed from one end of campus to the other be any indication, the costume idea was well received, and the Maroon Key may well be satisfied with the success of its undertaking.

FOR the second consecutive season in his two years as coach of varsity football, "Mel" Taube has turned out a winning team. Although seriously handicapped by the loss of several good men by graduation, Coach Taube managed to mold together a strong combine which turned in a season's record of seven wins and two losses. Last season's team recorded but one loss and one tie. The opposing teams were, however, somewhat less powerful than those met by this season's club.

In the first game of the season the State team ran wild to down Cooper Union by a score of 50-0, the same as the previous year. Bush ran 63 yards for the first touchdown in the first minute of play, and chalked up 4 more to his credit before the final whistle, while Sheff, Consolati and Frigard made one each. Bowdoin upset the State men, however, by a score of 20-6 in a hard-fought battle a week later. The Maine team relied chiefly in plunges of its heavy line, holding the Bay State representatives to one touchdown, made by Bush in the last period.

An old rival, Middlebury College, was defeated by Capt. Leary and his team in a game which was won, 13-6. Middlebury possessed a strong line, and opened the scoring in the first period with its only touchdown of the afternoon. In the second period the State offense began to function with Bush and Sheff scoring before the final whistle. Leary, Sievers, Smith, and Mountain did excellently in the line. In the fourth game of the season a heavy but inexperienced Connecticut State team was overpowered on their home field by a score of 39-0.

The first indication of the real strength of the team came when the eleven downed a strong and hard-fighting Worcester Tech team by the surprising score of 25-0. Sheff and Bush starred, the latter running 97 yards through the entire Tech team for a touchdown. The same smooth functioning of the entire team was exhibited the following Saturday when Amherst, State's major objective, was overpowered by a score of 21-6 on Alumni Field. Bush, Sheff, and Leary starred for State before the 7000 people who witnessed the game.

Rensselaer proved unexpectedly strong, and State had a hard time overcoming its lead to win the game, 18-13, before a crowd of Dad's Day guests. The Coast Guard cadets presented stiff opposition in a hard, fast tilt on Alumni Field. State took the lead at the start, but a last period rally of the cadets threatened to block the winning streak of the Taube-coached combine. They fell short of their mark, however, and it remained for a spirited Tufts team to stop the flashy Bush and score the State team for another loss. Bush, Frigard, and Sheff played well, and the fact that the ball was several times within a few yards of a State touchdown testifies to the closeness of the game.

Louis Bush leads the nation's scorers as a result of his piling up 114 points for State. By graduation Coach Taube loses some valuable players. Bickford, Cummings, Capt. Leary, Sheff, and White will not be available for next season's eleven.

AS the scores indicate, our soccer team this year has been highly successful. With a large squad including eight lettermen, several other veterans, and many neophytes, "Larry" Briggs was able to develop a powerful club which was destined to make itself famous in the history of one of the infant sports at this College.

The season opened on October 8 when the State booters defeated Worcester Tech in a 2-1 victory. The Tech team was outclassed from the start. During the first period the game centered around the Worcester goal; and Kozlowski, with the aid of Jackson, scored a clever goal. Tech attempted a comeback during the second quarter, but their progress was checked by Cowing, the agile State full-back. Bernstein scored the second goal for State.

On October 20, the team defeated the Clark players 3-1. The teamwork had improved greatly, so the boys kept the ball in the opponent's territory most of the time. State's first goal was made by a generous Clark half-back who surprised the goalie and himself by an accidental reverse kick. Jackson and Kozlewski were also heroes in scoring.

On October 27, Amherst abruptly ended State's nine game-winning streak by defeating us 4-0. The Lord Jeff team played well, while the State machine was disabled. Most of the playing was individual work. Kozlowski, Pruyne, and Mackimmie made spectacular stops, but were not able, as individuals, to break up the Amherst attack.

On November 5, Fitchburg tied us 1-1 in a fast, evenly-matched contest. In the first half "Ed" Talbot gashed his head for dear old Massachusetts. Many times the State goal was threatened, but the stellar defense work of the great Cowing and the miraculous stops of Houran broke up the plays. Jackson made the only goal for State.

On November 11, the Maroon dribblers defeated Conn. State 4-0, the goals being made by Kozlowski and Jackson. Our boys outplayed the Storrs outfit throughout the game. Cowing starred as usual for us on the defensive work, while Taft and Kozlowski played an excellent offensive game.

In the final game of the season, on November 17, the State booters outplayed a supposedly stronger team from Wesleyan. During the first three periods the State Club had no difficulty in handling the Wesleyanites. The overconfident Wesleyan combine played poorly from the start, and during the second quarter, they improved but slightly. The lone State tally came in the third quarter when Jackson scored during a melee in front of the Wesleyan goal. Starring for State were Captain "Bob" Taft, Cowing, "Russ" Taft, Pruyne, and Houran.

1932 Cross Country Season

ON October 15 in the first cross-country meet of the year, the State harriers easily defeated Tufts 17-38.

Capturing the first three places, and placing five men in the first eight, the Massachusetts State cross-country team scored its second victory of the season on October 22, by setting back the Worcester Tech harriers 20-35 on the State four mile course. "Bob" Murray, the sensational sophomore runner, again clipped the course record while taking first place. Captain Caird and Crawford finished together in second place. Little finished in sixth place; and Crosby in eighth.

Murray, Caird, and Crawford again captured the first three places, as State downed the Amherst harriers, 18 to 37, on the State course, Saturday, October 29. Murray again broke the time record for the course. Crosby of State took fifth place by exhibiting a beautiful sprint when forced near the finish-line. Little finished seventh, making five of the first seven men State harriers. Keil finished in twelfth place; while "Bob" Allen came in thirteenth.

Massachusetts took the first five places in the meet with St. Stephens at Annandale, November 4, triumphing over the "Saints", 15 - 30. Murray, in spite of the fact that he ran off the course, finished first; four State men, Captain Caird, Crawford, Crosby, and Little, shared the honors for second place.

On November 14, at the New England Intercollegiates, "Dave" Caird took ninth position. Crawford and Murray were forced to drop out of the race. The team did not place because only four members of the team finished the course.

Although "Dave" Caird captured individual honors, the State Varsity cross country team was defeated by the Northeastern harriers 20 - 42 in a sodden course at Franklin Park, Nov. 19. Murray was unable to run, and Crawford's injured ankle prevented him from finishing the course. With his two running mates out of the race, Captain Caird was forced to take the lead for State. He was pressed hard all the way by Lamb of Northeastern, but the midget State runner finished first by a stride. Crosby and Little next crossed the line for State, with Keil and Allen completing the count of the first five men to finish for the Maroon and White.

1933 Hockey Season

WINNING the last five games after losing two and tying one, "Red" Ball's 1933 Massachusetts State College hockey team completed a successful season. Inclement weather and lack of ice forced the cancellation of five other games.

On January 6th the hockey team received its first defeat when the Brown University Club rallied in an overtime period to force the State team into submission with a score of 4-3. Brown opened the first period with a furious rush and succeeded in scoring two goals in the first minute and a half of play on two long shots. Undaunted, the charges of "Red" Ball fought back with increasing vigor and, although State eventually lost, they outplayed and outfought the Bruins during the last two periods and most of the overtime period. Massachusetts State scored its first goal in the second period on a sally of the Bruin net by Cain, Snow, and Henry, in which Cain scored. Just before the close of the second period, Cain once again forced the puck past the Bruin goalie and tied the score. In the last period "Pop" Henry scored for State by causing the puck to rebound off the Bruin goalie's pads into the net. During the overtime period Brown scored again, due to the efforts of a solo artist, and this last score proved too much for the Maroon and White skaters.

Our varsity puckmen next engaged the Williams College sextet on January 18th, and the result was a 2-2 score. The tie could not be settled as darkness prevented the playing of any overtime period. Fast, hard playing featured the entire game with Williams. Goalie McGuckian was instrumental in preventing several dangerous shots of the Royal Purple invaders. State played well throughout the game, but darkness prevented the desired decision.

Poor ice handicapped the efforts of both teams in the game with New Hampshire on January 21st. New Hampshire won the contest 2-1. Before the State team began to function, the Wildcats scored twice, but two minutes later "Russ" Snow of State found a way of scoring without any assistance. In the last period State dominated the play, but the New Hampshire goalie was too alert to allow the State speedsters to score. The work of "Art" Brown, Cain and Hammond was outstanding.

Led by Captain "Dick" Hammond, the hockey team had little difficulty in defeating Amherst College 7-0 on January 25th. The Jeffmen showed lack of practice and never seriously besieged the State goal. The game was uninteresting as far as hockey was concerned, but the spectators found ample amusement in the clever stick-handling and fancy manoeuvring of such artists as Cain, Hammond and "Russ" Snow. Amherst's attempt to get past Hammond, Brown, and Blackburn were futile. Corcoran exhibited his talent and scored his first goal of the season. The game ended with Amherst still trying hard to score against State's third line.

The Maroon and White puckmen next handed a defeat to the Middlebury team. The score was 3-2. Cain was outstanding again in his offensive work. The Middlebury team's efforts were frustrated by the remarkable coördination of the State outfit, and Hammond with his team mates easily held the lead they had gained.

On February 4th, Hammond led his team mates to a 3-2 win over the Hamilton College team at Clinton. Three days previously, Captain Hammond scored the only goal early in the first period to overcome a stubborn Massachusetts Institute of Technology sextet on College Pond by a score of 1-0. The State team threatened the Tech goal continuously, but due to the poor ice the speedsters were slowed down and only one goal was made.

Led by "Russ" Snow in the final game of the season, the State sextet defeated the "Red Raiders" of Colgate 13-5 on February 10th. Both teams played a fast, wide open game, but the home teams clever passing attack was too furious for the Colgate men.

WINNING six games and losing eight, Coach "Freddy" Ellert's Massachusetts State College basketball team closed a fairly successful season by defeating Harvard and its old rival, Worcester Tech. Although the team's success was somewhat erratic and disappointing, most of the games were close and thrilling from the point of view of the spectator.

State opened the season with a sound drubbing at the hands of a strong Yale team, the score being 52-17. The Ellertmen, playing their first game of the year, could not cope with the smooth-functioning offense of the Blue Team, and after the first few minutes Yale's experienced quintet scored practically at will. Bush led the State scoring, and Nassif's defensive work is said to have been sensational.

Angered by the disastrous defeat at Yale, the team determinedly improved its offense, and thus outclassed a courageous Clark University team on January 11th, 55-30, with Bush scoring 18 points. Lojko's stellar floor-work and Captain Houran's defensive play were too much for the Clark team.

On January 12th "Joe" Lojko duplicated Bush's scoring feat of the previous night by amassing 18 points in State's victory over Middlebury, the score being 48-31. The game was not too exciting but it was encouraging for the fans to behold the home team in a winning streak.

On January 18th the basketekers lost to the strong Williams quintet in a hard-fought, high-scoring contest, 52-46. The long shots of the rangy Williams men were fatal to the State midgets. Captain Houran, Bush, and Lojko scored twelve points each in the attack.

In the game against Connecticut State on January 21, the Maroon and White hoop quintet was considerably off form. Despite the miserable exhibition of court work the team was able to turn back the scoring threat of the Nutmeggers. Bush and Lojko scored enough to give State the victory with a score of 22-10.

After gaining an early lead over the Wildcat five, Coach "Freddy" Ellert's Maroon and White basketekers could not repel the second half rush of the New Hampshire quintet, and were defeated in a loosely played game at Durham on January 28th. The score was 46-31. Bush, the leading scorer of the Massachusetts State team, led the offensive with five baskets and four fouls for a total of fourteen points. During the second half the Wildcat forwards ran wild, scoring 25 points to State's 11 points. The game was disappointing from State's point of view.

In an exciting struggle Springfield College defeated the Mass. State hoopers 34-30, after both teams fought for supremacy in a thrilling overtime period. The Ellertmen played an unusually fast offensive game, but the State luck was apparently lost when Lojko was forced out of the game on fouls in the overtime period.

Massachusetts State lost its third successive game to the invincible Hamilton basketball team by a score of 42-25. The Continental's victory avenged the defeat suffered by Hamilton last year when State drubbed the New Yorkers 42-21. The State hoop team started well but soon the guards could not check the reckless, carefree, yet sensational scoring attack of the Hamilton team. Captain Houran featured defensively.

On February 8th the State hoop five lost to the powerful Providence College team by a score of 46-40. The traditional State offense was disastrously broken up by the professional playing of the tall Providence guards. The State boys were so small that they could but seldom wrest the ball from the Providence giants. Nevertheless, the State team was not beaten until the last few moments of the game.

The Vermont game was the poorest exhibition of basketball seen on the floor this year. Neither team presented much semblance of team-work, but the Massachusetts State team managed to score enough baskets to defeat the Vermonters 36-25. Coach Ellert for the first time used the entire squad during the game, after the outcome of the contest was no longer in doubt.

Scoring only one floor basket in the second half, the Massachusetts State team lost a hard-fought game to its objective rival, Tufts, on February 17th, the score being 36-27. Lack of team-work and plenty of wild shooting gave the team its seventh set-back of the season.

In a close, hard-fought game the team lost to its favorite rival, Amherst, in the Amherst cage on February 22nd. The score was 40-37, and the deciding points were scored during an overtime period which proved very exciting to the capacity crowd which was in continual uproar throughout the entire contest. The game was very fast, and frequent penalties were imposed. Captain Houran sent the game into an overtime period with a successful free throw before the final whistle, the score being 35-all at the end of the regulation time limit. The Amherst men scored a victory by making use of the overtime period.

Holding the Crimson five scoreless in the second half, the Maroon and White team swept through with a 32-18 victory over Harvard in the cage on February 24th. Lojko was outstanding in State's attack. The Harvard men were unable to withstand the fast offensive of the State players.

On February 28, Massachusetts State closed its season in satisfactory fashion by conquering an old rival, Worcester Tech, in a high-scoring tilt, 46-27. The game was thrilling because of the extremely fast playing exhibited by both teams.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COLLEGE baseball team ended the 1932 season with another creditable record. In fact, the 1932 season was the most successful the team has seen in several years. Games won constituted 60% of the games played, in comparison with similar records of 43% and 37% for the seasons of 1930 and 1931, respectively. Great credit for this unusual record is due to Coach "Mel" Taube, who has turned out winning teams in football as well as in baseball.

In the first game of the season, the Bay State team functioned smoothly in both offensive and defensive play to win a one-sided game from Northeastern University by a score of 12 runs to 5. Bush and Hicks were the outstanding offensive players, while "Sugar" Cain held the visitors scoreless for six innings. Batting power disappeared, however, before a strong team at Williamstown, causing the loss of a closely-contested game marked by costly errors and a clever opposing pitcher.

The State players next invaded New York, and broke even in the two games played there. In the first game against Pratt Institute, the slugging spirit returned, but the ability to follow-up the hits and turn them into runs seemed to be lacking, and the team went down to a 7-5 defeat. On the next day the old form was back to stay for three games, and C. C. N. Y. was handed a 5-2 defeat with Capt. "Ernie" Mitchell as the heavy hitter, and Cain pitching a good contest.

Back in the winning column again, Coach Taube's men made short work of Connecticut State and Bowdoin, at Storrs and Alumni Field, respectively. The score of the former game was 3-1 and of the latter, 5-1. In the game with Conn. State, slugging came to the fore with Freddy Welch starring. Cain's pitching was the prime factor contributing to Bowdoin's defeat.

In the first game of the town series, the Bay State players were defeated when Amherst came from behind to score 3 runs in the sixth inning and win by a 5-4 score. Hicks slugged the ball for a triple and a single, and was the only player on either side to make more than one hit. Another rival took its toll the same week when Worcester Tech. held State batters in check and at the same time turned in sensational third and eighth innings to win with 11 runs to State's 7.

Nothing daunted, however, the lucky Bay Staters invaded Springfield to hand the Red and White a decisive set-back of 7-4, and three days later gave the visiting Hamilton team the even more overwhelming defeat of 11-5. Batting form was again shown when three Hamilton pitchers were pounded for eleven hits.

Putting an end to the Massachusetts winning streak, Trinity by heavy batting, and Tufts by stellar pitching, chalked up decisive wins of 11-3 and 9-1, respectively. "Moe" White's home run in the tenth inning brought spectacular victory to his team in the game with New Hampshire. Another close game was won at Schenectady two days later when Kovaleski pitched the Bay Staters to a 4-3 win over Union College.

The season wound up with the commencement game with Amherst at Alumni Field, in which the best efforts of all players combined to chalk up a 5-1 win, and to tie for the town championship. Capt. Mitchell, Hicks, Welch, Tikofski, Cain, Thompson, and Burrington played their final game for State.

A FAIRLY successful spring track season was brought to a close with a record of two wins out of four dual meets in which the team participated. In addition, two college records were smashed; the pole vault record, by Malcolm Stewart '33, and the discus record, by Clifford Foskett '32. The two intercollegiate meets resulted in a fourth place among Eastern Intercollegiate, and a failure to score in the New England meet.

The first opponent was the traditional rival, Tufts, which the team defeated by a score of 82½ to 52½ on the home field. The opponents showed strength in the hurdles and dashes, but Captain "Cliff" Foskett led his men to victory in the field events, he himself scoring 14½ points in five events to become the high scorer of the meet. State took all places in the javelin throw, while "Al" Ryan scored a double win in high jump and pole vault.

A week later when the Bay State athletes traveled to Hartford, they found themselves in an entirely different situation opposing the Trinity team which was strong in all events, and which completely outclassed the Bay State athletes in several. MacMackin was the only double-winner for State, winning both the 100-yard and the 200-yard dashes. Caird was outstanding in the two-mile, while Foskett placed in three events.

Foskett, Caird, Crawford, and Ryan again came through with first places against a much superior Worcester Tech team, but in spite of their efforts, the State team went down to an 85 to 50 defeat. The next week the varsity team competed in the Eastern Intercollegiate track meet at Worcester with teams from six other colleges. Foskett and Crawford again played stellar roles, and received good support from Ryan and Caird in gathering together 21½ points to place fourth in the meet. In the other intercollegiate event of the season, the New England Meet at Providence, Bay State athletes found competition far above their class, and failed to place any man in the semi-finals.

For its last meet, the team was host to Conn. State, which it easily defeated by a score of 83½ to 51½. State men won ten firsts out of a possible fifteen, with Captain Foskett scoring 17½ points to lead the scorers of the day, and to bring to a fitting close his athletic career at Mass. State. Other track men lost by graduation were Henry Holz, Stewart Edmond, and Kenneth Hale,

THE annual R. O. T. C. night ride was held on the evening of May 20, 1932 with eighteen cadets of the senior class participating. Clifford R. Foscett won the 1st prize of a silver cigarette case given by the officers of the 310th cavalry by turning in the best time record of 1 hour, 20 minutes, and 45 seconds, and Kenneth W. Chapman finished a close second in 1 hour and 22 minutes. George M. Flood was third, Leonard A. Salter fourth, and Leslie D. Goodall fifth.

The 1932 ride was under the direction of Captain Edwin M. Sumner, who instituted a new system. Accordingly, each cadet received a map of the Amherst vicinity, covering an area of about five miles north and south, and three miles east and west. Upon this map were located twelve stations, with only seven of these included in the route. In addition to the map, each cadet received sealed orders, a compass, and a flashlight. The cadets started the ride in pairs, the two men leaving station number 1 in opposite directions to complete the route.

Each rider had the privilege of picking what he thought was the shortest route from one station to another, but was on his honor not to travel faster than a trot. The horses were examined the next morning for lameness and injuries before the winners were announced.

M. S. C. Horse Show

RIDING PARK was the scene of the 11th annual Massachusetts State College Horse Show, held on Saturday, June 4th, 1932 at 2 P. M. There were more than one hundred entries registered among the eleven classes, and several prizes and cups were awarded to outstanding performers in the jumping competition, as well as in general horsemanship.

The awards for each class consisted of a trophy and four ribbons. Several of the classes were made up almost entirely of entries of persons not connected with the college. Some of the places represented were Holyoke, Enfield, Bellows Falls, Northampton, Granby, Amherst and New York State. The classes of especial interest to students at the college were: Class IV for saddle pairs ridden by ladies or gentlemen; Class IX for the Co-ed Horsemanship Class; Class X, the Senior Cadet's Riding Class; and Class XI, the Junior Cadets' Horsemanship Class. The President's Cup, the trophy for Class X, was won by Cadet John W. Tikofski, while the R. O. T. C. trophy for juniors, Class XI, was won by Cadet Gordon A. Houran. The Thompson Cup in Co-ed Horsemanship was captured by Miss Anita L. Pike.

Two cups were presented to students on the basis of work done during the past year. The Stowell Cup is awarded annually to the junior who has shown the greatest improvement in horsemanship during the past year. It was awarded in 1932 to Cadet John M. Fowler. Captain Dwight Hughes of the Military Staff gave a cup known as the Hughes Cup to the junior or senior who had shown the greatest interest in horsemanship during the past year. This cup is also awarded annually, and was won in 1932 by Cadet Charles A. LeClair of the junior class. Private Creary contributed the outstanding performance of the afternoon with eighteen consecutive jumps to win the trophy in the touch-and-out jumper class.

The Horse Show, which was witnessed by about one thousand spectators, was judged by the following: Colonel Romeyn in the Student Classes; Colonel W. J. Collins of Northampton in the Hunters and Jumpers Classes; and Mr. W. H. Dickinson of Hatfield in the Saddle and Hacks Classes.

The Value of Cavalry

IT is a common saying at the present day that cavalry has no place in modern warfare. This is usually heard from civilians with little or no military training, or from those men who served in other branches of our army in the lower grades during the World War. But the great generals of that war are of the opinion that cavalry was valuable in the World War and will be valuable in future wars. Foch, Pershing, Haig, Diaz, Von Hindenberg, Von Ludendorf, all are on record as believing in cavalry. Consider the beginning of the World War. Von Kluck has stated that had he had Von der Marwitz' cavalry corps [this corps had been sent elsewhere on a fruitless mission] he would have wiped out the British army at the battle of Mons.

The British cavalry covered the retreat from Mons, prevented the Germans from seizing the channel ports, and was used to fill gaps in the line at various times. In August 1918, the British cavalry with about 20,000 men drove through, near Amiens, a gap about three miles wide and in three days drove the Germans back fifteen miles and widened the gap to ten miles. The infantry and tanks could not keep up with the horsemen.

In Palestine, the success of the British was due to their cavalry, and the final crushing of the combined Turkish and German forces was due to a ride of eighty-five miles in thirty-four hours by the cavalry which cut off the Turkish retreat. The Italians did the same thing in 1918 cutting off the retreat and causing the surrender of the Austrian army. In Roumania, Macedonia, on the Russian border and in Poland, cavalry was the deciding arm in campaign.

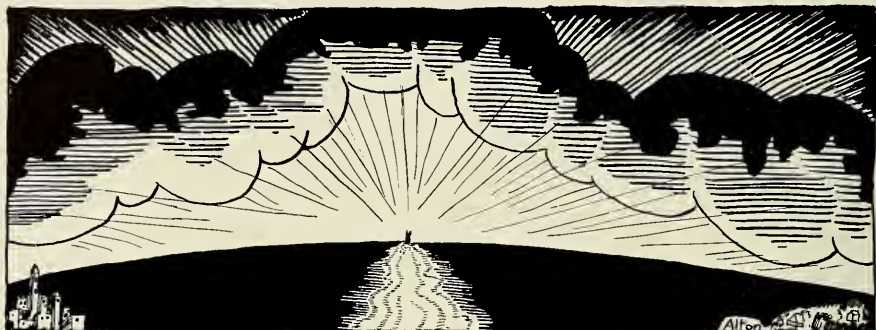

We had only four troops of our cavalry in action in France, yet their work at St. Mihiel and in the Meuse-Argonne offensive was highly praised. General Liggett, who commanded our First Army, says in his book, A.E.F., relative to operations near Barricourt, November 1, 2, 3, " had I had two divisions of American cavalry the morning of the 2nd, Von der Marwitz never would have got across the river, and how I prayed for that finely trained cavalry division at San Antonio, which transport difficulties had kept in Texas, chafing at the bit." And Liggett is an old infantryman!

Well trained cavalry can go anywhere except up and down a precipice. It needs no roads; can swim rivers; scout through thick woods impenetrable to the eyes of the airman; work in fog, rain or snow; and can travel so fast over open ground that neither artillery nor infantry can hit them. When there is need of rapid use of troops over ground where roads are poor or non-existent, to move against the flank or rear of an enemy, to cover a retreat, or change the enemy's retreat into destruction, to obtain information in the dark, in woods and in storms; — nothing can take the place of cavalry.

A cavalryman must know how to get every ounce of energy out of his horse; to be able to make and read a map; to be able to fight with rifle, pistol, saber, machine guns and automatic rifles; to lead and govern his men; and to care for all his property. Considering our college work, Muldoon the great trainer has said, "The best thing for the inside of a man is the outside of a horse." I think our cadets show the truth of that statement. The Freshmen get the drudgery of discipline and dismounted work; learn some of the elementary qualifications of a cavalryman, and how to shoot a rifle. The Sophomores go a little more into the academic requirements, learn to ride, and learn to operate the various weapons. Then the advanced course with better uniforms, some pay, more academic work, and riding privilege, produces well trained cavalrymen.

Students learn how to take care of a horse. They learn how to ride, shoot, and discover that they look on the world from an altitude twice that of the foot man, and figuratively and literally find their horizon is twice as wide.

Epilogue

“LIKE as the waves make towards the pebbled shore,
So do our minutes hasten to their end;
Each changing place with that which goes before,
In sequent toil all forwards do contend.
Nativity, once in the main of light,
Crawls to maturity, wherewith being crowned,
Crooked eclipses 'gainst his glory fight,
And Time that gave doth now his gift confound.
Time doth transfix the flourish set on youth
And delves the parallels in beauty's brow,
Feeds on the rarities of nature's truth,
And nothing stands but for his scythe to mow;
And yet to times in hope my verse shall stand,
Praising thy worth, despite his cruel hand.”

Thus, Shakespeare's well-loved sonnet fittingly brings our Index to a close. Our college years — years of gladness, sorrow, strife — are rapidly coming to an end, and we trust that this book, the sixty-fourth volume in the student history of the Massachusetts State College, will stand the test of time in recording our activities of the past year. It is hoped that as time goes on, this Index will become of increasing value in aiding the reminiscence of one mile-stone in our college career. In closing the covers of this volume, we wish to do so as:

“Sons of old Massachusetts!
Devoted sons and true —”
